CURLEY, EDWARDS, BUTLER, LAUD HEARST STAND

A copy of the masterly radio address, as delivered by William Randolph Hearst, should be in the hands of every school child in America. His courageous, intelligent and genuinely American action stamps him as a true American patriot. —MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY.

When a citizen of the United States is expelled from a foreign country under such circumstances it is time for our government to take steps to know why such a thing is done. What he did in publishing the facts relating to the Anglo-French treaty he had a right to do.—WILLIAM M. BUTLER.

If Washington doesn't concern itself with the rights of law-abiding citizens abroad, the good old American passport will revert to the "scrap of paper" stage. Mr. Hearst did a great thing for the American people in the publication of the pact. —GEN. CLARENCE R. EDWARDS.

When the Lewiston "squire" quit again last Winter, he urged Quinn to give Wagner a chance and the "prexy" agreed.

NEW LOWS SET IN WALL ST.

New York, Sept. 29—Heavy selling pushed the stock market sharply lower in late afternoon trading today, quickly erasing early gains of one to three points in leading industrial and utility shares.

The bear drive started on a report that Texas Corp., which dropped $3, would reduce the quarterly dividend. This was denied in quarters close to the company, but the break broadened under increased offerings throughout the list.

U. S. Steel sank below $157 to a new low for the reaction. American Telephone set a new post-June minimum below $204.

New York Central, Warner Brothers Pictures and International Telephone dipped $3, all to new lows. Gillette and Vanadium lost $6, St. Louis, San Francisco Railroad, $5, Canadian $8 and J. I. Case over $12.

Sales for the day again were comparatively large, approximating 3,700,000 shares.

FEELER PUT OUT TO GET DRAPER BACK IN FOLD

Chairman Taylor Offers Olive Branch and Holds the Door Open

Badly frightened G. O. P. chieftains today held out the olive branch to Eben S. Draper.

The bearer was Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican State committee, after a hasty conference with Republican leaders.

Taylor, in a formal statement, excused the Hopedale man for his blast on William M. Butler and the Republican platform. He laid the outburst to the fatigue and disappointment natural to a defeated candidate.

He left open the door for a reconciliation by stating that it was impossible for him to believe that Draper could be other than a regular.

PRAISES WORK OF DRAPER

Pressure on Draper, it was also learned, was being exercised through his close friends. These were told that their chances in the primary was sacrificing a promising future in an attempt to put over an issue that had been settled by acclamation in the convention for the present at least."

The result of their attempts at a reconciliation could not be learned late today, as Draper remained in seclusion. But both his close advisers as well as some of the party leaders were hopeful of success.

BUTLER HOLDS HIS TONGUE

Mr. Butler, seen at his Franklin st. office today, absolutely refused to discuss the Draper statement.

"What have you got to say in reply to Mr. Draper?" he was asked.

"I have no comment," he replied.

Chairman Taylor's statement read, in part:

W. R. Hearst Reveals How Secret Anglo-French Pact Was Secured

Following is the text of William Randolph Hearst's speech broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company system last night:

"I WILL NOT say 'My friends of radioland' because radioland nowadays embraces the whole country and the whole community. But since the radio speaks to the whole citizenship, I will revive that fine old-fashioned phrase, 'Fellow citizens.'

"Let me say that I am very happy to be one of our fellow citizens. I know of no finer title, and I want no higher position than to be a citizen of the United States of America.

"In ancient days to be a Roman citizen meant to be the equal of princes and kings. Today the most envied honor in the world is to be an American citizen.

U. S. Citizenship Greatest Honor

"And this is so, not merely because America is the greatest nation in the world, but because it is the freest nation in the world and the happiest nation on account of its freedom.

"We cannot understand how much freedom means in this country until we come back from countries where freedom means nothing.

"Here we have freedom of thought, freedom of the press, freedom of speech.

"Here we can think and say and do what we please as long as we do not interfere with the rights and liberties of our fellow citizens.

Duty of All to Preserve Liberties

"But the great honor and advantage of being an American citizen carries with it an obligation just as great, and that obligation is to preserve inviolate the rights and liberties and privileges which our forefathers won for us in blood and toil and travail, that we may hand this precious heritage of freedom and independence, of liberty and dignity, down to our children and our children's children, undiminished and unimpaired.

"Mr. Aylesworth, the very able gentleman who directs this radio, has desired me to speak about the incident of my recent exclusion from France.

"I defer to his judgment, although I think that incident already has been sufficiently discussed. Furthermore, I know the incident is of no consequence, except insofar as it affects the rights and liberties of other American citizens and the respect due the dignity of American citizenship.

France Acted Like Spoiled Child

"The action of the French government has so much the petulance of a spoiled child, and is so reminiscent of the days when the little boy next door got mad and said, 'You can't play in my yard,' that it is difficult to discuss the incident seriously.

"Nevertheless, it has its serious side.

"To begin with, the French government has asserted:

"FIRST—That the secret Anglo-French naval treaty, secured two years ago by my newspaper, was obtained by rifling the government files.

"SECOND—That it was secured by bribery and corruption of government officials.

"THIRD—That it was secured and published in order to injure France.

"Speaking of the small boy attitude of the French government, I am reminded of the story about the little chap who was asked by his teacher to describe a lobster, and he said that a lobster was a red fish which walked backwards.

"The teacher replied that the description was all right ex-

William Randolph Hearst revealed in a radio address last night how and why he obtained the secret Anglo-French naval treaty, as a result of which he was recently expelled from France.

Mr. Hearst delivered the address in response to an invitation from M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, who not only tendered the world-wide facilities of that company, but introduced the them. Introducing Mr. Hearst to the radio listener, Aylesworth paid a glowing tribute to his patriotism.

NO BRIBERY

Mr. Hearst's words were carried throughout the United States and Canada by 75 stations of the National Broadcasting Company.

His speech was also relayed by short wave from Schenectady, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Boston. It was heard in the Boston area through WEEI and WBZA at 10 p. m. Eastern Standard time.

A striking point in Mr. Hearst's statement was his direct refutation of allegations by the French government to the effect that the naval pact was obtained by rifling government files and bribery and corruption of government officials. He denied the treaty was published to injure France, and said the sole motive was to inform American citizens.

RIGHTS IGNORED

He then proceeded to tell that the contents of the pact were obtained by two French citizens, Messrs. Delaplanque and De Noblet, who deemed secret diplomacy, as typified by the pact, a detriment to their own country as well as the world at large.

Mr. Hearst said he did not think he had harmed the French government by publishing the secret pact. On the contrary, he thought some good had been done in preventing the return, in that particular instance, to the evil of secret diplomacy.

Mr. Hearst declared he was unconcerned over his personal connection with the case but was concerned over the abstract rights and liberties of an American citizen that were involved in the expulsion.

He wondered, he said, if in Washington there is a public official with backbone enough to defend the rights of American citizens sojourning abroad on valid passports.

The secret naval treaty between France and England was exposed by the Hearst newspapers on September 21, 1928.

It disclosed an agreement between the French and British to remove any limit on the construction of ships suited to the needs of those two nations.

The essential features of the pact

Butler, Edwards, Curley Laud Mr. Hearst

Boston, host to William Randolph Hearst as the city's honored guest at the Tercentenary celebration 70 days ago, today lauded him for his radio explanation of his treatment in France.

William M. Butler, friend and adviser of Calvin Coolidge and Republican nominee for Senator; Mayor James M. Curley and Gen Clarence R. Edwards, "Daddy" of New England's Yankee division were three outstanding among thousands.

In his address, Mr. Hearst told of the publication of the Anglo-French naval treaty and the ire of the French gooverrnment for the expose of a secret that threatened American interests.

Amazement at the inaction of Washington officials was expressed by ex-Senator Butler, Republican nominee for U. S. Senator.

$50,000 BALM IS SOUGHT BY LYNN MAN'S MATE

Mrs. Katherine Godard, Wife of General Electric Executive, Named as Defendant

Mrs. Katherine J. Godard, wealthy wife of a General Electric Co. executive, and resident of the exclusive "millionaire's district" of Swampscott, was today accused of stealing the affections of a former Swampscott motorcycle policeman.

Mrs. John J. Pendergast of Lynn, whose husband was motorcycle patrolman at White Court when President Coolidge vacationed at Swampscott, filed a $50,000 alienation suit in Salem Superior Court.

HER SMILE WINS

She also attached funds in the Central National Bank, Lynn, together with real estate owned by Mrs. G. dard, who lives at 3 Ocean ave., Swampscott.

In her suit, brought by Attorney James W. Sullivan, Mrs. Pendergast claims Mrs. Godard met her husband when President Coolidge was at White Court.

Mrs. Godard, driving an expensive sport car, was then overhauled by Motorcycle Officer Pendergast. According to the papers in the suit, Mrs. Godard's smile not only won her immunity from a summons for speeding but also won the handsome policeman.

FATHER OF DAUGHTER

Mrs. Pendergast said her husband was frequently seen in the company of Mrs. Godard thereafter and is now believed to be in the West.

In 1927, Pendergast resigned from the Swampscott police department and opened a lunchroom in Gloucester, selling it last December.

The Pendergasts have one child, a daughter seven years old.

Mrs. Godard's husband is said to be at the General Electric works in Schenectady, N. Y.

OTHERS IN BOSTON LAUD HIM FOR DEFENDING U. S. RIGHTS

Randolph Hearst, should be in the hands of every school child in America," said Mayor Curley.

"Official Washington should concern itself with the rights of law-abiding citizens abroad."—Gen. Edwards.

The three leaders were among the thousands that heard the broadcast received in Boston through WBZA and WEEI, and agreed with the publisher that France acted "like a spoiled child" when the pact was exposed.

Mr. Butler supported Mr. Hearst in his contention that publication of the pact was the right thing.

SAYS HEARST DID RIGHT

"When a citizen of the United States is expelled from a foreign country under such circumstances it is time for our government to take steps to know why such a thing is done," Butler said.

"What he did in publishing the facts relating to the Anglo-French treaty he had a right to do.

"I did not have the opportunity to listen to Mr. Hearst over the radio last night, but I have since read, word for word, the report of his speech and I repeat I hold what he said to be the exact truth."

The Grand Old Man of the veterans, Gen. Edwards, saw disregard of the passport threatened by the French action in his comment on the address.

"If Washington doesn't concern itself with the rights of law-abiding citizens abroad, the good old American passport will revert to the 'scrap of paper' stage," Gen. Edwards said.

"Mr. Hearst did a great thing for the American people in the publication of the pact, and no man can deny it.

LET WASHINGTON ACT

"I heartily approve of his statements over the radio, especially his version of the great good done for American people through publication of the pact that brought about his leaving France.

"I agree with him that official Washington should concern itself with the rights of law-abiding citizens abroad."

Gen. Edwards and Mr. Butler joined hundreds in social and civic life and the military in a laudatory stream that started almost from the opening of the broadcast last night.

Mayor Curley's statement follows:

"William Randolph Hearst, in his radio address, has presented the world to peer within the Council Chamber of secret diplomacy and in so doing has aroused not only America, but the world to the importance of the program of open covenants, openly arrived at, as sought by the former President of the United States—Woodrow Wilson.

"Individual selfishness and national greed have been the basic cause of wars and they will continue to be until such time as secret covenants and treaties between nations are at an end.

"The magnitude of the service rendered by William Randolph Hearst is more profoundly appreciated when we consider the punishment inflicted upon him by the Government of France for the performance of a duty which he owned not alone to the people of America, but to France and the world as well.

TRUE AMERICAN PATRIOT.

"The recent World War, we were taught, was fought by the allied nations as a war to end war, and yet we find in each of the nations that suffered greatest as a consequence of that war engaged in the very practices which made the World War possible.

"A copy of the masterly radio address, as delivered by William Randolph Hearst, should be in the hands of every school child in America.

"His courageous, intelligent and genuinely American action stamps him as a true American patriot."

George S. Mumford, president of the Atlantic National bank and an authority on national affairs was another who praised the stand of Mr. Hearst.

"I credit William Randolph Hearst with being a man of keen intelligence, too wise in his day and generation to meddle with the affairs of any nation which might not concern him or the American public which he represents," he said.

HAD RIGHT TO KNOW

"I would not approve of the employment of questionable methods on the part of any man or other agency to learn the secrets of this country, and by the same token would condemn such tactics with regard to the affairs of France or any other nation.

"But according to my understanding of this Anglo-French naval treaty, it is something in which the United States is vitally interested and I agree with Mr. Hearst that we had a right to know about it.

"This treaty virtually ignored all consideration of the United States and was opposed to the naval disarmament stand taken by high representatives of this country at that time.

"In other words, the United States was left rather in the position of 'holding the bag' while France and Great Britain 'jockeyed over their own interests.'"

William J. Foley, district attorney for Suffolk County:

"Mr. Hearst, as he has always done, has spoken for American liberties. In our generation no man has done more to keep America American than he.

"Nobody can forget that in those days when attempts were made to bring this nation in entangling alliances, whether it be pro-British treaties, League of Nations or World Court, that public opinion in America, in opposition, expressed itself through Mr. Hearst and his papers. He has never deviated from that course."

HONOR TO BE EXPELLED.

James A. Sweeney, city sealer of weights and measures:

"I have always enjoyed the editorials and news articles in the Boston Evening American pertaining to the relationship between Europe and America. I believe that at all times Mr. Hearst has shown himself a public spirited citizen, jealous of the rights of America. Those who listened in on his radio speech last night could not help but be impressed by his sincerity and patriotism.

Edward Jackson Curley, member of the Tercentenary parades committee:

"Mr. Hearst is today the idol of millions of Americans. His radio speech of last night, received in hundreds of thousands of American homes, left with his widespread audience the impression that here was one man to whom this Nation owes no favors and who would sacrifice everything in her behalf. No greater tribute can be paid any American than to be expelled from foreign soil because of his deep love for his own country."

One of the striking felicitations came from J. J. Paul, of Berwick rd., Medford, stage manager of a local theater, who took time out from his evening performance to hear the publisher.

ADDRESS "POWERFUL"

"Never has a great man, in so few words, conveyed so much to an audience," Paul declared. "His tremendous grasp of national and international conditions is shown in the small address he concentrated in a brief 15-minute period."

"I've always hoped that I could hear Mr. Hearst speak," Miss Beatrice F. Sauntry of Moreland st., Roxbury, telephoned. "I'm happy to now know that the ideal I built up is even bigger than my imagination."

"TRUE AMERICAN"

"Mr. Hearst has been a true American since his first step in newspaper world. The greatness that has marked his defence of American traditions, notably in the League of Nations fight, showed itself in the words of a citizen who was so shabbily treated by a nation that should be most friendly to all Americans," said D. R. Dorsey of Ashmont st., Dorchester.

GOOD THING TO BROADCAST.

The Boston weather man, George A. Loveland, said:

"I listened to Mr. Hearst's address over the radio last night and enjoyed it very much. He impressed me as very sincere. It was a good thing to broadcast. Mr. Hearst knows what he is talking about."

Attorney Charles H. Savage of Boston said:

"The address of Mr. Hearst brought forcibly to the minds of the people the question of American citizens, traveling in European countries with passports, being entitled to all the privileges which the latter afford. Mr. Hearst brought that out very clearly. His reference to ex-Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt indicated clearly that if those statesmen were alive today, and in power, no American citizen would be ejected from France without some sharp reply from this Government."

From Leonard E. Hubbard of Crest ave., Winthrop:

"Mr. Hearst's radio address was powerful. It made me proud that the country has such a man to guide its policies through his papers, and sorry for the nation that was so small as to vent its political spleen against him."

Hearst Bares Treaty Coup in Broadcast

as exposed by the Hearst newspapers were:

France and Great Britain agreed that a disarmament conference should deal with naval vessels by these categories:

Capital ships of more than 10,000 tons, or with guns larger than eight-inch calibre; airplane carriers of more than 10,000 tons; surface ships of 10,000 tons or less, armed with guns of six to eight-inch calibre, and seagoing submarines of more than 600 tons.

U. S. NEEDS IGNORED

They agreed that construction of large cruisers should be limited, but that small cruisers, auxiliary cruisers and submarines for costal defense should be exempt from restrictions.

The agreement totally ignored needs of the United States and was directly opposed to naval disarmament stand taken by diplomats of this country at that time.

A great furore of world-wide proportions was at once created when it became clear that pre-war secret diplomacy, supposed to have been outlawed at Versailles, had been resorted to.

Harold J. T. Horan, correspondent of the Hearst newspapers in Paris, was arrested under spectacular circumstances by agents of the French secret service in the Rue De La Paix. He was given the alternative of leaving France or facing a term of five years' imprisonment for alleged theft of secret documents.

Horan preferred exile to imprisonment, although he was wholly innocent of obtaining the document by any unlawful means.

Mr. Hearst informed the American Department of State and the then Secretary Kellogg that he assumed full responsibility for publication of the document.

TREATY DEFEATED

Exposure of the document had the effect of preventing its ratification in England and in France and also of opening the eyes of the United States to the fact that secret diplomacy had not ceased with the World War. When negotiations eventually were resumed at the London Naval Parley, in 1930, the press was publicly informed from day to day of what was going on.

Publication of the secret treaty was hailed, particularly in England, as an event for which the world-wide masses of people should be grateful. Following a conference with President Coolidge at the White House, Mr. Hearst said, on October 11, 1928:

"I think the British were glad it was published. It cleared the atmosphere, and the resultant editorial comment has been exceedingly favorable to its publication."

WELCOME IN LONDON

Last summer Mr. Hearst took occasion to sojourn to France. Then, on September 2, word was cabled to America that Mr. Hearst had left French soil at the request of the French government. An official communique thus explained the expulsion:

"The presidency of the council communicates the following: William Randolph Hearst, proprietor of numerous newspapers in America, was expelled yesterday from French territory. This measure, taken upon order of the president and council, minister of the interior, had its origin in the role played last year by Mr. Hearst in obtaining and publishing a secret document relating to the Anglo-French naval negotiations."

Hearst immediately went to London, where he issued his now famous, "It was a bit foolish, but extremely French," statement. In that instance, Mr. Hearst said:

"If being a competent journalist and a loyal American makes a man persona non grata in France, I think I can endure the situation without loss of sleep."

However, the expulsion stirred up a wave of indignation in America, while London newspapers also championed Mr. Hearst, welcoming him to that nation as one of America's most distinguished patriots.

Mr. Hearst sailed for his native land on the liner Europa, arriving in New York harbor on September 15 to be acclaimed by a notable gathering of public men and citizens.

A few days later he was invited by Mayor Curley of Boston to be a guest of honor at Boston's Tercentenary celebration. Mr. Hearst accepted and was feted in Boston with the Mayor of Boston, England.

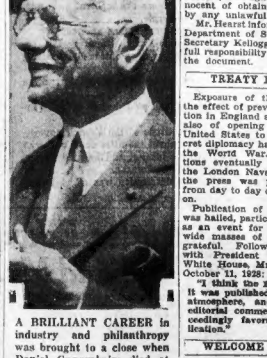
NEW HONORS

Since then the city of Chicago has arranged to honor him as a great American patriot on October 9. The city of San Francisco, and the city of Oakland, Cal., have arranged to do likewise.

While numerous senators and congressmen have publicly expressed resentment over Mr. Hearst's expulsion as an affront to the United States and an abrogation of the rights of an American citizen, the executive department at Washington, thus far, has remained silent.

The address last night was preceded by a short musical program by Edwin Franko Goldman's Band.

Passes On



A BRILLIANT CAREER in industry and philanthropy was brought to a close when Daniel Guggenheim died at his Long Island home yesterday. He gave $5,000,000 to the advancement of aviation alone.

Throngs in Capital Hear Hearst Talk

Washington, Sept. 29 (US)—William Randolph Hearst's radio broadcast last night was received with deep interest in the Capital.

Following the published comment of a number of members of Congress on his recent expulsion from France, in which vigorous resentment was expressed, there was unusual interest in the broadcast.

For the first time officials learned from Hearst himself the inside story of how and why he obtained and published the secret Franco-British Naval Treaty. Hearst refuted French charges that the treaty had been obtained by rifling government files and bribery of government officials.

The reception here was remarkably clear. Large numbers gathered at the National Press Club and other centers to listen.

cept for the fact that a lobster wasn't red and wasn't a fish and didn't walk backwards.

"Similarly it may be said that the assertions of the French government would be all right except for the fact that they are all wrong.

"The treaty was not secured by rifling the files.

"It was not secured by bribery and corruption.

"And it was not published to injure France, but to inform American citizens on a subject concerning which they had the right to be informed.

"The secret treaty was not secured by any devious or indirect methods. It was secured by good direct American go-and-get-it methods.

"The fact that this secret naval treaty was under negotiation between England and France was widely rumored in diplomatic circles. I was acquainted with several distinguished Frenchmen influential in public affairs. I contended to them that such a secret treaty was not fair to America, their recent valued ally.

Wilson's Hope in War Flouted

"I said that one of the great reasons which President Wilson had given for our entry into the World War was to end the evil of secret diplomacy, which had been the contributing cause of so many wars.

"I said that America had sacrificed much to help win the war, and that almost before American blood was dry upon the battlefields of France, this practice of secret diplomacy had been resumed to make future wars certain, and America's sacrifice vain.

"Some of these distinguished Frenchmen were convinced of the justice of my statements; and the influence of these gentlemen, combined with the effort and activity of our Paris office, secured for us a copy of this treaty from a responsible government official.

"The moment we secured the treaty, there was an end of secret diplomacy, as far as that document was concerned, for the secret treaty became a public treaty as far as world wide publication could make it.

"The treaty consequently was never consummated.

Officials Held for Conspiracy

"The French government officials were very angry, and Mr. Delaplanque and Mr. De Noblet, through whom we received the treaty, were arrested by the French government for conspiracy, and I was accused of complicity.

"I was not concerned about the charge of the French government. I had done what I believed was for the best interests of my own country and my own people.

"Moreover, I did not think that I had done the French government any harm, but, on the contrary, had done it a certain amount of good in preventing its return, in this instance at least, to the evil practice of secret diplomacy.

"Now, fellow citizens, you may say to me:

"'You certainly committed no crime nor misdemeanor nor offense as far as our own country was concerned, but did you not commit an offense according to the laws of France?'

"And I say in reply:

"'I will leave the decision of that question in your hands, in view of the following facts.'

No Crime, French Court Rules

"Mr. Delaplanque and Mr. De Noblet, from whom our office received the treaty, were dragged before a French court by the French government and prosecuted; and their own French court decided that they had committed no crime, no misdemeanor, no offense of any kind, and discharged them as innocent, and dismissed the case.

"Now, if the French gentlemen who gave us the treaty committed no offense, how could we Americans who received the treaty have committed an offense?

"And how could we be accused of complicity in an offense when the French courts decided that no offense had been committed?

"Yet, two years after the publication of the secret treaty, Mr. Tardieu did accuse me of complicity in a non-existent offense, and did ask me to leave France, although I had already been in France earlier this same year for several weeks without molestation of any kind.

De Noblet Sues French Government

"One word more and I will conclude.

"Mr. De Noblet is the scion of a great French family. His uncle was ambassador to the Vatican, and he, himself, is a man of influence and importance.

"As soon as the French courts discharged him as innocent and declared that no offense had been committed, he promptly sued the French government for false arrest, and refuses to compromise the case.

"Perhaps, fellow citizens, some of you will say to me:

"'Why did not you sue the French government?'

"And I say, first, because I had the simplicity to believe, fellow citizens, that somewhere among our paid servants at Washington there might be found some public official with independence enough and backbone enough and American spirit enough to defend the rights of law-abiding American citizens sojourning abroad, and to vindicate the validity of an American passport, and to maintain the liberty and dignity of American citizenship.

Decries Official Apathy

"I still think if Theodore Roosevelt had been alive, or if Grover Cleveland had been alive, you would have heard little of W. R. Hearst, to be sure, for he is of no importance in this situation; but you would have heard much about the value and validity and inviolability of the American passport, and of due and necessary respect for the rights and liberties of the American citizen.

"Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland are dead. But let us hope that American spirit and American independence and American loyalty to the rights and liberties which we inherited from our fathers, and desire to hand on to our sons, did not die with these great Americans."

Hearst Introduced to Two Continents as 'An American'

New York, Sept. 29 (US)—M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., in introducing William Randolph Hearst last night, said:

"There are two great forces of mass communication: the newspaper and magazine publications and radio broadcasting. Tonight they are closely interwoven.

"The publisher of a group of newspapers and magazines whose combined circulation is the largest in the world is about to speak to you over the radio.

"He is an American. Born in California, educated in the West and East, he has become a citizen of the entire United States. A great editor who fearlessly thinks, writes and publishes what he believes to be for the best interests of our people and our country.

"I think if I had asked William Randolph Hearst what he would have liked me to say by way of introduction, his reply would have been something like this:

"'Be brief; do not overly praise; but do not forget to say that William Randolph Hearst is proud that he is an American and an American newspaper man.'

"Mr. Hearst.—"

LEGION MOVES HEADQUARTERS TO BOSTON FOR HUGE CONVENTION

200,000 ON MARCH FOR A WEEK

Desks, Records and Equipment Arrive From Indianapolis; Welcome Given Leaders

With National Adjt. James Barton in command, Legion headquarters literally moved to Boston today after a long trek from Indianapolis.

Desks, records and other equipment meshed together at Horticultural Hall with the precision and speed of an army on the march.

It was the opening gun of the greatest convention of the Legion, which will bring 200,000 visitors to Boston next week.

Adjutant Barton was delegated charge of the pre-convention activities for headquarters by National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, who is detained at Indianapolis.

VISITORS WELCOMED

The party arrived at North Station at 7:30 a. m., registered at Hotel Statler and by noon had Horticultural Hall in full swing, ically decorated and ready for busi-

They were met by a party of Massachusetts legionnaires headed by John D. Crowley in the absence of Carroll J. Swan, president of the 1930 American Legion Convention, Inc.

With the opening of headquarters came the announcement of a prize contest among suburbs of Boston and communities outside of Boston for the best decorated sections.

The hall was a bee-hive of activity with trucks backing into the hall from the streets to unload railings, partitions, pictures and desks and records. They were brought here in three railroad cars from Indianapolis headquarters.

AMONG THOSE HERE

In the delegation were:

National Adjutant and Mrs. James F. Barton; Assistant National Adjutant Frank Samuel; Grover Workman, in charge of headquarters under Mr. Samuel; E. O. Marquette, director of emblem division, and Mrs. Marquette; Bowman Elder, national treasurer; Glenn Crawford, national auditor and Mrs. Crawford; Isi Lee Goldsmith, chief of office force; Emma Puschner, director of child welfare; Fred Comlet, national director of publicity; Helen Silcox, secretary to the national commander; Helen Howard, secretary of the publicity division; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Saxton; Miss Antoinette Seybert; Edna Hodapp; Margaret Higgins; Freda O'Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cook; Mrs. Vera Grimm; Mrs. Annie Tuttion; Esther Rubush and Bonnie Fox.

In the Legion Auxiliary delegation were Mrs. Donald Macrae, national president; Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggin MacDowell, national secretary; Mrs. Cecilia Wenz, national treasurer; Harold D. Robinson, publicity director, and Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Fae Nieley, Mrs. Bert S. Hawkins, Mrs. Donna Akin, Mrs. Dorothy Ashley and Mrs. Margaret Gauss.

Maj.-Gen. Sir William P. Hickie, K. C. B., World War hero and head of the Irish Veterans' organizations, who arrived yesterday as one of the convention guests, was a guest at "Dunroving," the Westwood estate of Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, today.

Gen. Hickie arrived on the Cunarder Scythia and was greeted by a committee representing the State, the city and the Legion. Col. John W. Hyatt and Dr. William Tyler represented Governor Allen and Standish Willcox welcomed the distinguished visitor in behalf of Mayor Curley.

The Legion delegation, including two bands, was headed by Col. Swan.

HOUSING BIG TASK

The first function of this week among the legionnaires was the luncheon of Croscup-Pishon Post at the Copley-Plaza. The post, composed of advertising men, has completed arrangements for the greeting of advertising men from other sections when the convention gets under way.

Drum corps, bands and other featured organizations will be housed at various post headquarters through arrangements with the housing committee, which has had the enormous task of planning the biggest visit to Boston in years.

The housing committee has practically completed arrangements for the care of 90,000 visitors outside of visitors who were successful in obtaining other reservations.

Brighton-Allston to Entertain

The Brighton-Allston Post 17, American Legion, will entertain visiting Legion convention delegates from Charlotte and Raleigh, N. C., at a banquet to be given next Sunday evening, Oct. 5, at Brighton Town Hall.

This post will be host to the Hornets Nest Fife and Drum Corps from Charlotte and the Drum and Bugle Corps from Raleigh. They have planned for their entertainment also a theatre party at a special midnight show at the Egyptian Theatre on the following Thursday.

The civic committee assisting the Brighton-Allston Post is headed by Harold Brownson, with Judge Connelly, Harry K. Newhall, Will Fuller and City Councilor Edward M. Gallagher.

Draper's Bolt Upsets Plans of the G.O.P.

right to his personal convictions upon any issue, and especially upon the issue of the Eighteenth Amendment. This, however, is only one issue. There are many others of greater importance.

"The predominating issue is whether Massachusetts shall continue to have a Republican senator to co-operate with President Hoover and his administration to obtain for Massachusetts the degree of federal co-operation and support to which we are accustomed."

Taylor also said that Draper conducted his primary campaign as a loyal Republican and repeatedly promised to support the party's nominee. The chairman added that he still believes Draper will support the ticket and the platform.

The sun had scarcely cast its first glow on Boston when the telephone lines were humming as the leaders in various parts of the State discussed the situation that the Hopedale man has suddenly brought about.

All were agreed that a general pow-wow was necessary at the earliest possible moment. In this, Butler, it is said, readily agreed and he also agreed to meet with the conferees.

DRAPER HITS STRADDLING

The Draper statement was characteristic:

"It can satisfy neither the wets nor the drys," he declared in speaking of the liquor problem.

Draper did not attend Saturday's convention of the state delegates of the Republican party. He said that his presence there would have been embarrassing.

Later, Draper issued the following statement:

"I have heard that my absence from the State convention of the Republican party on Saturday has occasioned some comment. I know that my friends understand. However, in justice to the entire public, I have decided to make this brief statement:

"Neither Mrs. Draper nor I attended the convention.

"As I am absolutely in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, I could not have appeared at the convention without causing further embarrassment to my former opponent, the dry nominee for the Senate.

"My entire caree in public life has been based on the principle of honesty and sincerity in candidates for political office. Therefore, it was my belief that, considering the position of the nominee, the only plank that should have been adopted was a repudiation of the dry national Republican platform of 1928. Thus it was far better for me to stay away.

NO ONE SATISFIED

"It is highly amusing to me to read a plank quoting from President Hoover on the right of the individual to work for repeal of a Constitutional amendment. During the entire primary campaign that was my exact quotation. However throughout that period I was repeatedly called disloyal to my party, to my President and to the Constitution, for using the same quotation.

"The fact is that the prohibition plank adopted on Saturday is a meaningless straddle. It can satisfy neither the so-called drys nor wets within the Republican party. It is beyond my belief that the voters of Massachusetts can accept a candidate who has one platform for a primary campaign in September and then the same candidate standing on another platform in the election campaign in November.

"I have been a life-long Republican. I have never hesitated, whether in victory or defeat, to give of my utmost to my party. However, there comes a time in the life of any individual who is true to himself when principle must be made paramount."

The reaction to the Draper statement was immediate and pronounced. In the main, the party leaders elected to remain with Butler and the ticket nominated.

LEEDS, NOTED YACHTSMAN, IS DEAD

Uncle of Reginald Boardman Breathes His Last At Home in Hamilton

Herbert Corey Leeds, uncle of Reginald Boardman, and, in his younger days, a yachting enthusiast connected with the international cup races, died today at his Hamilton home.

He was a member of the class of Harvard 1877, and for years made his Boston home at the Somerset Club in Beacon st.

A native of Boston, Mr. Leeds prepared for college at Hopkinson's School and, after finishing college, passed three years abroad. He was one of the first men to develop golf in America and in 1893 sailed on the Vigilant in the international cup races with the Valkyrie.

In 1895 he was on the Defender throughout the entire season and raced against Valkyrie III, and was guest on the Columbia in 1899.

In 1874, in conjunction with James Dwight, he wrote "The Laws of Euchre, with Suggestions About the Play," and he also published "The Laws of Bridge." For private circulation he wrote and published "The Log of the Columbia" during the 1899 racing season.

Mr. Leeds' active participation in yacht racing was in 1901, when he sailed on the Columbia as guest of E. D. Morgan, Harvard, '77, who was in charge of the defender that summer.

The yachting enthusiast was a member of the Somerset Club, the Myopia Hunt Club, the Country Club, the Eastern Yacht Club and the Tennis and Racquet Club.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday noon at Mt. Auburn Chapel.

BROTHER TELLS OF RUSH TO SAVE CERO

Hustled Out, Found Romano Girl and Took Her to Gov. Fuller

A dramatic story of how he saved his brother from the electric chair at the last moment was told by Cosmo Gaggi of Brooklyn, N. Y., today in Suffolk Superior Court, where Gangi Cero and Samuel Gallo are on trial for the murder of Joseph Fantasia.

Through a misunderstanding Cero Gangi was indicted as Gangi Cero, and this explains the mixup in names between the defendant and his brother.

"My brother in the death house told me a girl was present at the shooting," testified the Brooklyn man. "I told Lawyers Brennahan and Bockford and they told me to find the girl.

"I went down on Prince st. and asked a lot of questions and got the name of Philomena Romano and an address. I went to the house and there she was. There wasn't much time but she went with me and the lawyers to see Gov. Fuller and my brother was saved."

ASKS FOR INTERPRETER

Philomena Romano is the missing witness whose testimony, given at Gallo's first trial, was read into the evidence at the present trial.

Cosimo Gangi's testimony came after Cero had faced long cross-examination by Gallo's attorney. At one time he became confused by the involved questions and asked for an interpreter. Judge Burns called one.

Cero again thrilled the spectators filling the Suffolk County courtroom to overflowing with his explosive answers to the DA. Only his emotions between the time of the killing in Prince st. on June 11, 1927, and the day when a respite saved him from the electric chair at the eleventh hour.

Once he leveled his forefinger at Gallo, in the prisoner's cage, and accused his co-defendant of the crime. Gallo took it impassively.

INSISTS HE TELLS TRUTH

Vincent Garro, counsel for Gallo, tried to bring out that Cero's answers differed from those given at the police station on the day of his arrest and at his first trial.

"I am telling the truth today," said Cero, repeatedly.

Cero admitted telling the police that Gallo had paid him for working for him, but he insisted he was not informer because he told nothing about Gallo having done the shooting.

"Why did you tell the policeman who arrested you, 'You are making a mistake'?"

"If a man slaps you in the face, you say, 'Why do you slap me? you make a mistake'?" responded Cero.

Asked to describe the shooting again, he said:

"All of a sudden Gallo puts his left arm across my chest, meaning we walk no further. I look at him to see why. He is pulling gun from the left side of his pants with his right hand. He pulls it out and shoots Fantasia. (Here Cero clapped his hands sharply.) Then I start to run."

SLAPS LAWYER ON BACK

When Atty. Garro asked Cero to show him where Fantasia was shot, Cero drew a laugh by giving the lawyer a smart blow on the back, which caused Garro to say:

"Wouldn't you like a hammer?"

Cero said he never told William R. Scharton, his first lawyer, that Gallo killed Fantasia. Asked if he was willing to have Scharton testify, he said he was. After Judge Burns explained to him that it was his privilege to refuse, Cero changed his mind.

Milton Women Dedicate New Club Next Monday

By NANCY BREWSTER

Milton clubwomen anticipate one of the greatest experiences of club life next Monday when the corner stone of their new clubhouse is laid by the president, Mrs. Edward M. Cox.

The dedication exercises take place at 1:45 p. m. and then will follow the first meeting of the club season. This is scheduled for 2:30 and will be held in the Milton high school hall.

For several years the club women have sponsored various money-making activities in the hope of this realization. That it is at last to be achieved is a tribute to the efforts and energies of the 400 women who comprise the membership of the Milton Woman's Club.

Dr. Anna C. Palmer, retired chairman of the department of public health in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, is on the committee in charge of the cornerstone arrangements. Mrs. Henry B. Arnold is chairman of the group. Others are Mrs. Henry E. Sheldon, Mrs. Winthrop W. Churchill and Mrs. Arthur Hibbard, all past presidents.

The clubhouse is to be thrown open to the members at Christmas, says Mrs. Reuben Gleason, chairman of publicity. At the first meeting, however, further plans will be endorsed to raise funds with which to maintain the clubhouse.

Harvard Women to Have Fashion Show at Statler Nov. 13

A fashion parade is on the club calendar of the Harvard Women's Club, the proceeds of which will add considerably to the Harvard Loan Fund. This will not be held, however, until Nov. 13 at the Hotel Statler ballroom. The show will take place at 2:30 followed by an afternoon of bridge of which Mrs. James J. Hepburn is chairman.

Mrs. Emory F. Chaffee, new president of the club, announces the opening meeting for Thursday at the Hotel Vendome at 2 p. m. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Elizabeth Pooler Rice will give a dramatic reading of Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By." A reception to new members will complete the afternoon.

Catholic Daughters to Sponsor Meeting of Truth Guild

Court John J. Williams, Catholic Daughters of America, will tomorrow evening sponsor an open air meeting under the direction of David Goldstein of the Catholic Truth Guild. The meeting will be held at the Healey playground, Roslindale sq., Mrs. Lillian F. Jackson, informs. An invitation is extended to the general public.

Winthrop Club Will Start Fall Season at Meeting Friday

A social afternoon will usher in the new club year for the Winthrop Woman's Club on Friday at 2 p. m. in Elks hall. A reception to new members, a musical entertainment, highlight memories of the annual meeting of the State Federation at Swampscott, and readings by Miss Adele Alcheff will feature the program.

Mrs. Margaret R. Ramsey heads the club for the coming year. Assisting her are: Mrs. Beitrha C. Cone, first vice-president; Mrs. May E. Gibby, second vice-president; Mrs. Mildred C. Doloff, third vice-president; Mrs. Myrtle P. Dodge, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Salerno, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lucy H. Greenlaw, treasurer; Mrs. Ida G. Britt, auditor; Mrs. Renee M. Hamilton, Mrs. Ruth B. Hollander and Mrs. Lillian P. Moore, directors for one year; Mrs. George E. Deantir, Mrs. Clara E. Seabury and Mrs. Harriet M. Twining, directors for two years; and Mrs. Margaret E. Barkeley, Mrs. Helen J. Davis and Mrs. Alice W. Hodgkins, directors for three years.

Coat Suit in Semi-Formal Fashion

BY ANN ARDEN

MODEL FROM THEODORE, INC.—HAT FROM MLLE. CLEOPHEE ROBILLARD

THE WINTER or fall suit of last season has changed radically. In fact, it looks as though you will have to make a bonfire of last year's suit because the coat, or what was a jacket, must be much longer, if it is really to fit into the fashion picture.

THIS FALL, the really formal ensemble consists of three pieces, a three-quarter coat and skirt of suede cloth with a satin or silk crepe blouse. This is usually trimmed with short-haired fur, such as Persian lamb, for the most formal; but for the more popular and not so severely smart suit, fox or lapin trimming are more prevalent. Some of the skirts are circular in cut, while others just flare slightly from the hips. The very smartest suits have a straight skirt, and a three-quarter length coat which juts out a bit, giving a Persian silhouette.

THE DISTINCTIVE costume suit pictured was designed by Jean Patou. It is of black broadcloth, the skirt circular across front; the coat, of three-quarter length, has a bell-shaped silhouette, its lower and front edges, and up-standing small collar are all outlined in Persian lamb. The long over-blouse, and upper lining of coat are both of white satin. The blouse is fitted to the waistline, tied in back, and boasts exquisite detail of shirring, low-placed revers, and bell-shaped cuffs.

THE BLACK felt double brim hat is draped to black and white feather trim. Suits of this type are, of course, formal or informal according to the accessories used. For instance, for informal wear a silk crepe tailored blouse, a cushion brim hat or simple beret, calf and suede oxfords, calf bag and a short necklace of stone composition beads to blend with the costume color make this suitable for one kind of an occasion.

THE SAME skirt and coat with a tunic blouse of satin; pearl or crystal beads, or some elaborate variety called costume jewelry; suede opera pumps and a big antelope bag make this very formal. The skirt or blouse may, of course, be worn with another coat. The coat itself may be worn over another dress of canton crepe. With this formal way of wearing the ensemble a "tip-lit" hat of felt, soleil, or vis-a-vis is suggested as this is more distinguished looking.

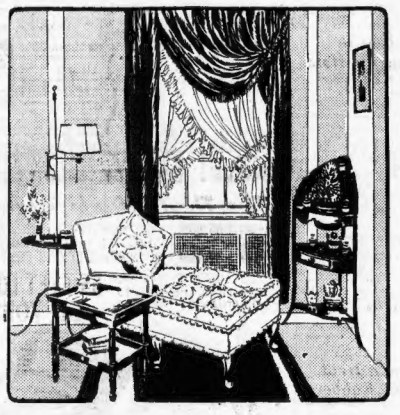
NATIONAL HOMEFURNISHINGS STYLE SHOW ALL THIS WEEK



There's a scale of harmony in HOMEFURNISHINGS

. . . just as there are chords and discords in music and colors.

Do you know if your living room "ensemble" harmonizes in periods, styles, woods, tapestries and finish? Does your furniture match the architecture of your house, the walls, ceilings and floor treatment of your rooms, your draperies?

Now is the ideal time to add new homefurnishings to your home. Prices are at their lowest level since 1914. They will not stay down—indications are that factory costs will soon start upward. So make your re-furnishing plans at once. Consult the advertisements of homefurnishing dealers in our columns, then visit their stores and let them help you gain new home charm!

They will answer these questions for you, tell you how to avoid the "discords" that so frequently mar the harmony of the home. And they will be glad to show you how you may purchase excellent furniture pieces that will fit your home and not embarrass your pocket book.

SAVINGS GROW; BUYING LAGS

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—While many lines of business and industry continued to lag, a considerable number of improvements were shown today in a survey prepared by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the National Business Survey Conference.

Savings took an upward turn of considerable dimensions, checking against bank accounts was smaller than last year. Building and loan associations were, generally in improved condition. Installment selling continued below last year but delinquencies showed no material increase. A falling off was noted in all insurance lines.

While a material increase was shown in public construction, so far this year it had not made up the decline in private building.

Although railroads spent more in improvements, traffic volume was off. Electric railway lines also showed decrease, but motor bus lines had gains. An advance in shipbuilding activity was noted.

HOOVER IS TO TURN ON POWER

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 29—When President Hoover turns a golden key in the White House, tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., the hydro-electric plant, situated half way between Littleton and St. Johnsbury, Vt., will go into operation.

His hand at the key will be the central feature of dedicatory exercises attending the opening of New England's largest electric utility system.

For the dedication ceremonies, public officials from the four states and 250 municipalities in which units of the New England Power engy in August, an increase of 9 the new Fifteen Mile Falls for the celebration.

Invitations have been extended to Governors Charles W. Tobey, Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, John W. Weeks of Vermont and Norman Cass of Rhode Island, to the mayors and selectmen of many cities and towns.

Girls Pull Hair in Strike Row, 27 Held

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Twenty-seven women and girls and three men were arrested today after several hundred striking dressmakers attempted to prevent non-striking employes from going to work at fashionable shops in West Fifty-Seventh st. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

Scuffles and hair-pulling preceding the arrests. Extra police detailed to the strike area were unable to cope with the disturbers and cannel reinforcements.

Inquiry Ordered in Malden Man's Death

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Sept. 29 (INS)—An inquest into the drowning of Alex Cameron, 39, superintendent of an electric company in Malden, Mass., was under way here today.

Cameron was drowned when he tried to swim West river to escape provincial police.

Ex-Policeman Held in $44,000 Robbery

Everett, Wash., Sept. 29 (AP)—Clarence H. "Dick" Shivley, former Seattle policeman, was held here today as a suspect in the $44,000 robbery September 15 of the Citizens' Security Bank by six men armed with machine guns. Shivley was identified as driver of the bandit car.

Pettridge, Noted British Author, Dead

Chislehurst, Eng., Sept. 29 (AP)—The novelist, William Pettridge, died here today. He was author of "A Clever Wife," "Nine to 6:30," "Madame Prince," "The Amazing Years" and Affectionate Regards," his last work, published in 1929.

HUNT WINNERS OUT TOMORROW

The selection of winners in the second Ripley Word Hunt has been made and the complete list will be announced in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Examination of the 15,000 entries was a long and difficult task, but 124 correct sets of pictures and answers were finally compiled. The judges chose the 99 winners from this list.

The judges were Carl Dreyfus, Boston business man widely known throughout the state for his public work, a trustee of the City Hospital and Simmons College; Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, former Boston school committee member, and a former president of the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, and T. F. Hedley, who had charge of the preliminary checking.

Charge Two Women With Double Killing

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP) — Two women, one a grandmother, have been ordered booked for murder because their automobile ran down and killed two men, brothers, yesterday. Police said the women had been drinking.

Mrs. Leona Dorsett, 27, and Mrs. Blanche Kent, 41, were driving at high speed when their car struck William and August Reher, who were repairing a tire at the side of the road.

Kin of 'Public Enemies' in Chicago Face Jail

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP)—The "next of kin" of Chicago's "public enemies" today were ordered arrested, to be held as hostages for the "enemies" themselves.

Detective Chief Norton told his men to arrest the wives of the "enemies" wherever possible. Failing in this, the nearest relatives of the hunted men are to be taken.

Vagrancy warrants have been signed for the 26 most notorious figures of the city's gang life.

Four already are under arrest. One surrendered, another was found in a police cell on another charge and two were found in hospitals.

Terry Druggan of the erstwhile beer baroney of Druggan and Lake, is at the University Hospital. His doctors say he will die if he is moved, but police insist he be taken to Bridewell prison hospital guard.

The State's attorney's fight against labor racketeers—the men who have taken control by force of a number of union treasuries—received a setback when a number of union leaders called on Col. A. A. Sprague, anti-crime leader, and protested against the campaign. Legitimate unions are being made the sufferers, the labor men charged.

Nervous Robbers Flee With But $200

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP)—Two nervous robbers, masked with handkerchiefs, robbed William V. Kelley, 70-year-old multi-millionaire, and Mrs. Kelley in their Lake Bluff mansion early today.

Five servants were herded with Mr. and Mrs. Kelley into the kitchen and held at bay by the pistol of one robber while the other searched the place.

All they got was about $200.

SOME HOPE FOR ELEANOR GREEN

Hope for the dying Roxbury girl, Eleanor Green, still sends a ray of sunshine into the tiny Roxbury home. "Little Soldier" still lives, and her courage and faith help to make the long pain racked days and nights less of an ordeal.

Hands of love and affection are aiding in easing her troubled body, and she smiles and hopes that some day she may be up and about like other girls.

Contributions of sympathetic readers are still being sent to the Green home, and a mother's appreciation is sent to the donors through the Boston Evening American.

EDITED AND CONDUCTED BY MARTHA LEE

Gas Kitchen Shown at Lee School

THE ANNUAL four-day sessions of the Martha Lee Cooking School have come to be a much anticipated event amongst the women of Greater Boston who delight in keeping up to date in the modern developments of home economics.

Each year they learn from recognized experts all the very latest ways of preserving and preparing food and see demonstrated the very latest kitchen equipment and appliances.

The Cooking School this year, held, as usual, in the Hotel Statler ballroom in charge of Martha Lee, takes place on September 33, October 1, 2 and 3 and promises to be even more interesting than ever.

MANY ADVOCATE

Thousands of good cooks and housekeepers advocate the all-gas kitchen; that is, a cabinet gas range with oven heat control and a modern gas water heater as its basic equipment. Now, however, another essential item is added to the up-to-date gas kitchen. This is the Electrolux Automatic Gas Refrigerator. Gas refrigeration is popular because of its absolute noiselessness, its even, constant cold and the lack of attention necessary for its successful operation. Having no moving parts to wear and get out of order, experts and scientists declare that there is no reason why the Electrolux Gas Refrigerator should not last indefinitely.

It is in the item of attention that the all-gas kitchen saves most time and housework. Its three items of equipment are practically automatic in operation. There is always an ample hot water supply for all housekeeping purposes—for kitchen, laundry and bathroom, so there is no loss of time in any of these departments.

NO STIFLING HEAT

The all-gas kitchen is characterized by neatness, trimness and beauty. There need be no stifling heat, no dread of tedious toil. And, best of all, kitchen time is cut short and other duties or pleasures take the place of the hours wasted in poorly equipped kitchens.

The visitor to the Martha Lee Cooking School learns how to conserve both time and food—how delicious new dishes may be easily and quickly prepared. How waste may be avoided and, in fact, how the whole household may be run more smoothly and economically.

Among the home economists present at these cooking school sessions will be Miss Daurice Darling, who for a number of years has been director of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co.'s home service department.

Miss Darling will explain to you the many advantages of using gas in every possible home department. She will answer your questions and help you in the solution of your housekeeping problems for she is practical as well as efficient.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS

Should you prefer not to discuss your household problems in the open meetings you will attend, Miss Darling will gladly meet you in her office in the Boston Consolidated Gas Building, which is just across the way from the Hotel Statler, and help you freely all she can to their practical solution. She and her assistants in the home service department will be pleased to demonstrate any of the many approved gas appliances which are always available on the big display floors at the gas building.

The Boston Consolidated Gas Co. of course, makes no charge for Miss Darling's service to you and is only too glad to help you in every possible way in the operation of your present gas equipment or selection of those best adapted to your particular needs.

You are cordially invited to visit all departments of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. at its Arlington st., building in Boston or the most convenient of its many neighborhood offices, at any time, when the latest models of All-Gas-Kitchen equipment will be demonstrated to you.

Martha Lee Tells of Stain Removing Formulas

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast from Station WHDH

THE OTHER day I was "talking shop" with a cleansing expert. He said, "Martha Lee, your household economic experts dwell a great deal on matters far beyond results alone when you suggest delightful foods and menus.

"Did you ever think of the things that are part of our everyday business life?" I said, "You must have something in your mind that would be interesting to women in general. What is it?"

Said he, "Did you know that we could start a kind of a glass works with the material that we take out of garments?—Or did you realize that we could make some cobble stones if we chose to do so—if we extracted the soot that we have taken out of garments and then let the wind blow it that we could smudge up part of the city of Boston?"

He went on to tell me a story which was a scientific revelation. The removal of spots and stains in his plant was one of the most wonderful things that I ever heard of.

There is a separate formula for every kind of stain on every kind of fabric known. There are 13 formulas for removing milk stains alone! He told me all about the actual cleansing process, the painstaking care that surrounds the refinishing of garments. His company has developed three types of cleansing. The story is too long to tell you here, but if you do wish, drop me a line at No. 5 Winthrop sq., and I'll gladly send you a story which I'm sure you'll love to read.

And now let's finish our program with a little cooking.

BAKED FINNAN HADDIE WITH POTATOES

An everyday luncheon dish. A four-pound fish requires three cups of sauce.

Remove bone and skin from a nice plump, sugar-cured finnan haddie and trim ragged edges. Soak one half hour in lukewarm water, or in half milk and half water. Drain well and cut in pieces about the size of the hand. Lay them in the center (overlapping one another) of a large au gratin dish. One might use a glass baking dish, large over but not too deep. Pare medium-sized potatoes, cut in halves lengthwise, or use whole potatoes that are very small, parboil 5 minutes, drain, and place around the fish.

Pour over all a white sauce, reserving part of the sauce to add during the cooking, and afterward. If the salt of the fish causes sauce to separate, the addition of fresh sauce will make it smooth. Bake in a quick oven until potatoes are soft and well browned.

Or some Baked Haddock with Cheese Sauce.

FLAKED HADDOCK WITH CHEESE SAUCE

This is a practical dish, as it can be prepared and set aside until time to heat and serve. It can also be nicely arranged in individual dishes as suitable for the lunch room.

Order a haddock skinned, and steam it until fish separates from the bone. Cool, separate into flakes, and place in a glass casserole. Cover with cheese sauce, or if cheese is not liked, use plain white sauce. Boil, mash, and season potatoes. Force them through bag and tube in the form of roses around the edge of the fish, leaving a space in the center. Bake until fish is heated thoroughly and potato is brown. Then sprinkle over the open, center space chopped parsley and paprika.

CHEESE SAUCE.

Make a white sauce by melting 2 tbsps. of butter, adding 2 tbsps. flour and 1 cup milk. Then add ½ to ¾ cup of cheese, grated, or, if fresh and soft, cut in small pieces, and cook till cheese melts. Season with salt and pepper. This is sufficient sauce for 2 cups of flaked fish.

And, last of all, some fried apples with sweet potatoes.

FRIED APPLES WITH SWEET POTATOES.

Select large sweet potatoes, boil, peel and cut into slices one-third inch thick. Saute in butter until well brown, seasoning with salt and paprika, and lay slices on buttered baking sheet. Select rather tart apples, remove core and slice across having slices the size of potato slices. Fry in butter until nearly done and remove from pan, carefully placing one on each slice of potato. Sprinkle with brown sugar, bake in a hot oven until well browned and the apple has cooled through but not lost its shape. Remove carefully to serving platter and garnish with cress.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Weekly $5 Prize

This week's $5 prize goes to Miss Betty MacDonald, 152 Washington st., Newton, for her delicious drop cookies:

BETTY'S DROP COOKIES

1 tsp. soda
1½ tbsp. hot water
3¼ cups Ceresota flour
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup chopped walnuts
½ cup raisins

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the beaten eggs. Add soda mixed with the hot water. Then add the flour, salt and cinnamon together. Lastly add walnuts and raisins. Drop on greased sheet or pan and bake in moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

Lee Cooking School on Tomorrow

HEAR YE! All ye sisters and cousins and aunts and mothers and grandmothers—everyone of you who is faced with the three-meals-a-day problem—you simply can't afford to miss the four-day Cooking School that opens tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Statler under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. The school will run September 30 and October 1, 2 and 3.

As you know, Martha Lee and the popular lecturer, Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross, will play twin hostess parts, and they're anxiously waiting for the opportunity to greet you all in person. If you've attended these Martha Lee Cooking Schools at the Hotle Statler in previous years, you know how much fun, enjoyment and real benefit is crowded into two hours and a half each afternoon. If you've never been to one, you've a real treat in store for you. Mrs. Cross has spent many weeks in collecting new and interesting recipes which will be prepared right in front of you as you sit comfortably in a luxurious chair in the Statler Ballroom and she has other equally valuable home-making helps for you.

TOMORROW'S LIST

For instance, tomorrow's demonstrations will include:

Eggless Cake
Apricot Frosting
Egg Aristo
Dutch Apple Cake
Peanut and Carrot Salad
Minced Steak a la Stanley
Cheese and Tomato Rarebit
Essentials in Making Good Tea
Cheese Sauce

And for the proof of the pudding comes delicious dishes can be thoroughly tested by the fortunate guests to whom they will be awarded from the Statler stage.

Other interesting features of this four-day school are the valuable gifts presented through the courtesy of New England manufacturers.

These will include two De Luxe Model Glenwood Gas Ranges, one Yukon Model Kelvinator, one $235 Spanton Radio from the Standard Store, one Eureka Vacuum Cleaner, ten cases of Moxie and a year's supply of Zinco. In addition to this there will be each day 25 well-filled market baskets distributed to guests in the audience.

STANDARD BRANDS

These will include standard branded goods well known to New England housewives, such as Salade Tea, Campfire Marshmallows, Crisco, Bond Bread, Beardsley's Shredded Codfish, Weston Biscuits, Friends' Beans, Worcester Salt, Pabst-ett Cheese, Prudence Corn Beef Hash, Kybo Coffee from First National Stores, Rinso and Lux from Lever Bros., Loose-Wiles Cookies and Crackers, Kellogg's Rice Krispies, a bottle of Mazola, a box of Kremel Dessert Powder, a bottle of Pureoxia, Rumford Baking Powder, La Choy Chop Suey and Chow Mein, one of Heins' 57 Varieties, and Nexol; Electrical appliances from E. C. Lewis, Inc., will be another interesting feture.

Doors will open at 1 o'clock and classes will start promptly at 2 o'clock. Admission is free, no tickets are required, but come early to be sure of front seats. An unusually fine musical program will be provided from 1 to 2, and everyone is sure of a few hours of fun and enjoyment, with maybe some valuable gifts.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear the writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Allow me to congratulate you on your sincere efforts in your recent campaign:

"Everybody spend $20 and help bring back prosperity."

While all have been willing to talk about and to discuss hard times, I notice that the Boston American is the only organization that is actually willing to do anything to bring back good times.

I suppose we are all aware by now of the causes for the abrupt change from a period of prosperity to one of depression. It was the same old story of mob psychology. Everybody was having an excellent time in the pasture of happiness, picking berries to their hearts' content when suddenly a great, big, ugly bear jumped from the bushes, spilled the berries, and then made the would-be pickers all run to cover like so many scared rabbits.

I really believe that, if the public would warm to your plan, prosperity would be back with us in no time. However, it won't. The public is holding on to its money. The common people have had a hard year.

There is but one way to bring prosperity back to us. We know that there are today hundreds of thousands of people in this country out of work and with no income. Naturally, we cannot expect them to spend even a dollar to help out. They haven't got the dollar. We also know that there are thousands of people in the United States with immense riches and resources. We grant that they could do a great deal more than they have yet done to help out. However, the vast majority of people in our country still belong to the middle classes. They number millions. They have lived comfortably in the past. They have spent more than their share of money in raising the standards of living in this country to a plane that they had never reached before. Now we must turn again to them for the solution of this great problem. But—they are not sure of their jobs!

Here, then, is the solution to our problem. If the employers of this nation would say to their employes:

"We want you to help us to bring prosperity back to our country, and we know you can do it. We will guarantee you your job with our company for one year, provided your work continues to be satisfactory, on this condition: We want you to take the salary you will receive this year and spend it. You have a chance now to purchase excellent products of every kind at bargain prices. Let's all pull together."

If 50 per cent of the employers of this country gave a guarantee such as this to their employes, we would stand on the threshold of a period of prosperity in this nation never before equaled in history. The common people would start a wave of buying immediately. Why, in less than a month the wheels of industry would be turning again at full capacity. We all know that this would create more jobs. The poorer people, now working, would begin to spend. The richer people would spend on a much larger scale, realizing that good times had definitely returned.

Why not a campaign such as this?

The Boston Evening American is a link in a strong chain of newspapers covering the entire country from coast to coast. I can think of no other organization better qualified to make a success of such an undertaking than the Hearst newspapers. They can do it and do it well, as they have always done in the past. I am sure that our great American and fellow citizen, William Randolph Hearst, would welcome this great opportunity to aid his country once again and to keep the good old U. S. A. right where it belongs, perched on the top rung of the ladder of success, a model to be admired in every way by the nations of the world.

Catholic Daughters to Have Part in Legion Program

Editor Boston American:

I was very happy to see in your society columns that the Catholic Daughters of America were to take a prominent part in the reception to the American Legion. The splendid showing of this fine body of women in the tercentenary parade entitles them to a very prominent part in all such affairs and they will acquit themselves accordingly.

Youth Works With Smile and Persistence

Editor Boston American:

There is a youngster who sells newspapers at the Wellesley Hills station on the Boston & Albany Railroad.

I like to watch him in his efforts from the car window when the train stops there.

He is so politely persistent in getting rid of his wares. His face is radiant with the job, not controlled by the number of papers he sells. This is secondary. He evidently likes his job. He enters into it with such persistence, but the smile upon his face. That is what counts.

He enjoys his work and if that youngster is not a great success in life I have misjudged his persistence. He is well worth studying. I don't know his name. I know his actions.

Sympathy Only for Intellectual Climbers

Editor Boston American:

Reading your social column makes me often feel that with social climbers I have no sympathy. This business of "Keeping Up With the Joneses" never enters my head and the only thing that I keep on my mind when reading about this type of person is my hair.

With intellectual climbers in Boston among the young people I have some sympathy, if only they are climbing, not from mere ambition, but from love and longing for the truth and light which I think is a strong ambition among young people in Boston.

Now for these political climbers, as far as I am concerned, they may fall and break their neck and I am not going to put on mourning for them. We are too conscious of the so-called politicians. "Some of them are like a hobby horse, where there is continual motion but no progress in their ideas.

BAKING POWDER

THE TWO-TO-ONE LEAVENER

NOTE the use of Rumford Baking Powder in the demonstrations made during this series of lectures on modern cooking.

You will be pleased with the superior results achieved through the TWO-to-ONE leavening action of this ideal, all-phosphate powder.

With the use of Rumford two-thirds of the leavening action takes place during the mixing ud one-third takes place in the oven heat. This is the perfect proportion to obtain ideal results in baking.

Through this TWO-to-ONE leavening action Rumford dough or batter is ready when it is placed in the oven and is thoroughly done and perfectly textured when baking is completed.

Give your family the advantage of the added value in Rumford and give your baking the advantage of

OLD WHALER DESCRIBES PERILS

Whales of the type of the one being exhibited here in Stuart st., just off Tremont, were seldom captured by the old New England whalers for the reason they were too dangerous to cope with, owing to their great speed, size and ferocity, according to Capt. Folger, who is in charge of the 55-foot, 68-ton leviathan here.

He is one of the veteran New Bedford mariners, and today recounted how the harpooners of the New England boats used to wait after sighting one of the mammals, to make sure it wasn't one of the dread finbacks.

In the early days whaling equipment was all of the hand thrown variety and the boats were not built as strongly as they are today. When, accidentally, a finback was harpooned it used to drag the small boats through the water at an astonishing rate of speed, then suddenly double back and lash at the craft with its powerful tail. 'Inese sudden dives, twists and attacks sent many a boatload of men to their death.

Modern munition experts invented the deadly torpedo tipped harpoons, fired from bow guns, and this equipment makes the task of the modern whaling company comparatively simple.

The word comparatively is used advisedly as even today the mammals have been known to lash out at the small boats, which of necessity must attend to the final details of "blowing" the whales full of air so that they can be floated back to the factory ship or dock.

Aimee, the leviathan exhibited here, pulled this trick. The first harpoon launched caught Aimee well back, far from a vital spot. For 16 hours she pulled the ship through Pacific waters and, with sudden twists, doubled back to lash at its armor-plated sides with that dreaded tail. Finally the gunner was able to land the second harpoon near the heart. An hour was allowed to make sure the whale was dead, but when the small boats approached her she gave vent to a dying attack and swept one of the boats into the water, but fortunately the men were all rescued.

SNAPPY BILL AT K.-A.

Headline vaudeville honors this week at the Keith-Albee Theater are divided between Will and Gladys Ahern, variety favorites, and the mellow Swance-voiced Lee Morse, petite, dainty "blues" singer. They top an excellent stage show.

The eccentric dancer and comedian, Johnny Berkes, and his charming partner, Vesta E. Wallace, the latter long identified with Al Trahan in vaudeville, present their new sidesplitting act, "Who Started This." Other major RKO acts include the Mantell Midgets, presenters of puppet shows, and the Pasquali Brothers, internationally known super-athletes.

On the talking screen Jack Holt, popular hero of a thousand desperate screen situations, is seen in his latest film, "The Squealer", a tale of the underworld with all the thrill of gangdom and smart speakeasies, topped by the action and excitement of the bootlegger feud. Holt is presented in a new role for him, Hitherto best known as a strong man of the wide open spaces, he appears in "The Squealer" as a mastermind of the rum-running fraternity, suave, immaculate and very much at home in society and behind the scenes of hijackery.

'BLACK DOTS' AT SCOLLAY

Dave Kramer and Georgie Morton, who 10 years ago were one of the foremost acts in vaudeville, are reunited again. These two, professionally known as "The Two Black Dots," have always brought many laughs wherever they have appeared. They are featured this week at the Scollay in a new offering, and this appearance will mark the first time these boys have been on the boards together again since they split some 10 years ago. All their old blackface material has been saved and brought up-to-date, as is exemplified by their timely opening of two colored men on a miniature golf links. In their finale, when they both gag in Hebrew lingo, they are a big hit.

Dearest Anne:

No Guide to Chic

is needed to recognize the extreme smartness of the lovely fall frocks at Evelyn's! Oh, Anne — they are wonderful! And they're priced at $6.95 - $12.85 and up! Feel the quality of the materials — the style — the workmanship — all the marks of expensive dresses. The dress sketched illustrates the difference between ordinary styles and those at Evelyn's — This is a gorgeous — dashing frock—The swagger jacket is of black caracul cloth—the blouse of daring red crepe—And the skirt is of heavy black crepe—The price is amazingly low—only $13.95! There are Russian tunics of wool-crepe, smart tweedy woolens, canton crepes, chiffons, laces, and adorable evening gowns. In fact, all styles and sizes, at Evelyn's Dress Shop, 8 Winter St.

Hats Remodeled $3.50!

I surely was fooled for I thought Barbara's hat was brand new—and it's her last season's hat! She had it remodeled by Miss Gillespie's French milliner — who, with her expert and individual ideas, transforms old hats into the newest season's style trend! New hats fitted to your head by a French milliner for as low as $7.50! Do look at the charming, distinctive frocks — They're all individual, one-of-a-kind dresses! Prices start at $16.50. It's such a wonderful convenience having both hats and gowns in the same shop. Gown remodeling is a specialty there. The Gillespie Distinctive Gown & Hat Shop, 26 West St., Room 507.

Coats Cleansed for $1!

Imagine it, Anne! The Modern Cleansing Shoppe not only cleans your dresses but also your coats for only $1. And they do beautiful work! Send those frocks that were your favorites last year — Their wonderful cleansing process will actually put new life into your things. Tell the men-folks they cleanse and press three-piece suits, topcoats and overcoats for the same price. All your garments are insured against fire and theft while in their possession. If you just call Liberty 5261 they will send a messenger to collect your package. The Modern Cleansing Shoppe is at 166 Tremont St., Room 43.

A Dress Free!

It's a daring offer to give a dress to anyone who can duplicate their values—but that's the slogan that has made the New York Dress Mfg. Co. bustling and brimming with business! They have but two prices, $3.75 and $6.75 — all dresses that are worth three or four times as much. They're mostly sample dresses — sold to you retail at less than wholesale prices — and there are thousands to choose from! All latest fall fashions and materials. Every day is bargain day—and every day brings new dresses. Refunds and exchanges within 5 days if tags are not removed. Plenty of saleslgirls and dressing rooms. This is their only store. The New York Dress Mfg. Co., 815 Washington St., 2nd Floor. (Opp. R. H. White's.)

If Your New Fall Suit Is Nattier

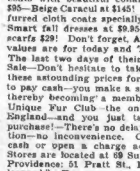
and jauntier—more feminine than any suit you've ever had before—And you're searching for just the right gloves—Search no more, Anne—for the perfect gloves for every occasion this fall are black gloves! But mind you—Anne, not just black gloves—for they must be the correct number of black inches for the occasion for which they are worn! Filene's Glove Shop has taken the hint and stocked black gloves in every conceivable variety. Their 4-Button length pull-on gloves that just cover your sleeves—are correct and very smart for your suit or tailored frock. They cost but $4 in kid or suede. For your formal street frock or informal afternoon dress the 6-Button length pull-on gloves are most effective. They're $5.50 in kid and $4.50 in suede. The 8-Button kid are $6—Suede $5.50. You must see the 16-Button length mousquetaire gloves for formal afternoon or evenings—they give your hands and arms a suave, slender appearance. In kid they're $9.50—suede $8.50—lambskin $7.50. The very last word in Fall chic is the 20-Button length mousquetaire gloves for evening—They're striking with black—white or pastel!—The kid are $12.50 and suede $10. Their gloves are, of course, all of the most exquisite quality and workmanship. Filene's Glove Shop is on the street floor.

Last 2 Days—Scott Furriers' Anniversary!

When Seal-dyed coney coats are marked at $125—and Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat) at $195 at Scott Furriers, New England's Largest Fur Establishment, 69 Summer St., Boston—you won't need any urging to be present at the last two days (today and Tuesday) of their Birthday Sale! And those are just two of the marvelous values, Anne! There are natural Muskrat coats with beautiful collar and cuffs for $95—Beige Caracul at $145! And luxuriously furred cloth coats specially priced at $36! Smart fall dresses at $9.85—Gorgeous Fur-scarfs $29! Don't forget, Anne—that these values are for today and Tuesday only!—The last two days of their great Birthday Sale—Don't hesitate to take advantage of these astounding prices for you don't have to pay cash—you make a small payment—thereby becoming a member of the Scott Unique Fur Club—the only one in New England—and you just take home your purchase—There's no delay—no investigation—no inconvenience. Of course—if you prefer you may pay cash or open a charge account. Scott Furriers' New England Stores are located at 69 Summer St., Boston; 309 Westminster St., Providence; 51 Pratt St., Hartford, and the sign of the climbing leopard." For your convenience Scott Furriers are open every evening until 9 o'clock.

Here's a Surprise

And a delightful one! The Allen Boston Bead Store—where many of us have taken our beads to be restrung — has opened a new and wonderful department. You may now buy their gorgeous imported beads all strung. They have been in business close to 50 years and have never carried necklaces before, so this as an introductory special they have marked their beautiful clear cut crystals at $1.85. They're crystals that sell for $3.50 elsewhere! Their dainty, imitation rose quartz necklaces are specially priced at 95c! They're both fascinating and very fashionable on black. And they're such wonderful values you'll do well to tuck a few away for birthday or Christmas gifts. They re-string beads for 40c and up. The Allen Boston Bead Store is at 3 Winter St.



Contourette

When a woman feels that she is well dressed—it gives her a confidence that religion is often powerless to bestow! Elegant gowns may be successfully worn only when The Foundation Garment is 100% right. Without question, the "Female Form Divine" cannot be maintained by the wearing of elastic webbing supports. Here's a Foundation garment minus elastic webbing—adjustable lacing at side enables one to retain a charmingly youthful line. It corrects faulty posture (and therefore adds a weak back). The abdomen is supported in perfect position. Maids and matrons—alike glory in it. For approximately the price of ready-mades—one may obtain a Caporn Contourette individually made. See models and try on before ordering. Caporn, 110 Tremont St., Suite 310 (Near Park). Liberty 6649.

Trim Ankles

Shapely contours—They're yours for the asking, Anne! — Even though you have swollen ankles or varicose veins — The "Parisstocking," the new elastic stocking is a wonderful lightweight seamless stocking with knitted-in heel — I've numbered the remarkable features of this stocking for you in the sketch—(1) No Knee bulging—for this Over-the-knee style has soft sheer top to fasten to garter. (2) Not a Wrinkle line at the ankle as they're especially fashioned and knitted. (3) No Swelling at Ankles—for the foot piece extends into the vamp of your shoe—There are To-the-knee styles—and styles to suit every purse according to quality. Mail orders—or call for demonstration before buying at the Allen-Payson Co., 110 Tremont St., Suite 310. Lib. 6649.

That's My Story

for this week, Anne—It's been a wonderful week shopping. Don't you wish you were with me to see all these smart new things. I know you'd love the new dresses — especially the Russian tunics—They're all so lovely and feminine—This season it seems we are going to be "ourselves" again!—with feminine curls and styles. I haven't seen so many wonderful values for a long time —you really must come in town this week. You'll find some wonderful offerings—and prices—So my Anne, drop me a line and let me know what day to expect you. What fun we'll have—think it over—and decide before we start just what you need and what shops to visit.

Devotedly yours,

Priscilla

'THE BACHELOR FATHER' SELECTED FOR MARION DAVIES' NEXT TALKIE

'ROSALIE' TO BE MADE LATER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29—"The Bachelor Father," a Belasco success, is all set for Marion Davies' next talkie. While Marion has been having a vacation, Irving Thalberg has been reading plays. He sees in "The Bachelor Father," with some changes, a play that will give Marion the right mixture of comedy and drama.

AS FOR "ROSALIE," well, Mr. Thalberg says it has been delayed. That means that West Point will not see our Marion and Robert Leonard, her director, on a trip. She returns to Hollywood almost immediately.

Irving Thalberg, who is making great plans for "The Bachelor Father," has telephoned Marion to come on home. She will be with us about October 1. I suspect Robert Leonard will direct her. "Rosalie," which served Marilyn Miller as a stage play, has been put into the cash can. Dear me, no, only postponed. If "The Batchelor Father" turns out as well as Mr. Thalberg expects, Marion will have a play that will give her everything she needs.

JAMES CRUZE has always said that Betty Compson was his favorite emotional actress. Just because he and Betty decided to travel separate matrimonial paths is no reason why Le shouldn't continue to admire her as an actress. She has just finished one picture for him and he has borrowed her from RKO for another. The second picture is being called "If a Body," and it is an original by George Rosner. Betty has made a beautiful home out of her house on Hollywood boulevard, formerly occupied by the Samuel Goldwyns. All her spare time between pictures has been spent in planning the various rooms and creating a glorious garden.

HAL WALLIS DEPARTED for his European trip with a contract in his pocket. Hal and Louise Fazenda are going to tour Europe while First National is shut down. But while he is gone he needn't worry about his job, for Jack Warner gave him a new contract all in recognition of his work on "The Dawn Patrol," "Mother's Cry" and other pictures that have come out of First National. Graham Baker, who with Hal Wallis runs First National, has also been given a new contract, proving that Jack Warner is pleased with the way the studio has been run this last year.

THE OTHER WOMAN in "Kiki's" life is to be played by Margaret Livingston. I am wondering if Margaret will wear a blonde wig for Mary Pickford nearly always has dark-haired women in her pictures. Margaret has worn a blonde wig before so long we have sort of forgotten how she looks with her dark hair, but with or without a wig she can certainly play the vampish characters to perfection. Can you bear it? Mary is going to have a theme song. Herb Nacio Brown will write it. I didn't think it of Mary.

"MIN AND BILL." Three guesses! But why put you to such a test? "Dark Star," Lorna Moon's last story, becomes "Min and Bill." Before you frown and get upset, let me tell you why the change. Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler do such a fine job that "Dark Star" unconsciously becomes their picture. "Min" is Marie and "Bill" is Wally. It is just too bad, but they walk off with the show, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is going to give them a chance to do it right.

FOUGHT WITH BARE FISTS

"The Spoilers," at The Olympia and Uptown, recalls to mind the fact that the first fist fight between two men ever photographed for the motion pictures screen was filmed by Biograph in 1900. It was between Wallace McCutcheon and Harold Vosburg for the short-reel picture, "The Moonshiners," which was Biograph's first attempt to develop and follow a story idea.

The day this Biograph feature was filmed was a momentous one for the motion picture industry, for a fist fight, combining action with drama, gave the early producers the ideal subject material for their awkward little features. Many were the fights that followed this one to the screen, the vogue culminating in the memorable battle between William Farnum and Tom Santchi in Selig's filming of "The Spoilers."

This fight between Farnum and Santchi remains one of the "big scenes" of the screen. It is this fight that Director Edwin Carewe tried to "top" in Paramount's present re-screening of "The Spoilers."

WILL REPEAT THE BILL

The program with which Sir George Henschel inaugurated the Boston Symphony Orchestra on October 22, 1881, will be repeated by him when he opens its 50th anniversary season in Symphony Hall on October 10 and 11. Sir George is now crossing the ocean from England to be the guest of honor here. The program will include Beethoven's overture, "Dedication of the House"; an air from Gluck's "Orpheus"; Haydn's Symphony in B-flat (B. & H. No. 12); ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde"; scene from Bruch's "Odysseus"; and the prelude to Wagner's "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."

Serge Koussevitzky will shortly arrive from Europe to conduct the first event of the anniversary season—a Boston Symphony concert to be given especially for the radio on Saturday evening, October 4.

THORNTON, ACTING FIFTY YEARS, STILL A STAR

By JIM THORNTON
Famous Actor and Song Writer, and a Star in "Sweet Adeline" at the Colonial

I AM ASKED TO TELL the story of my life. It simply can't be done. If I began now I'd be dead before I'd gotten a third of the way. And I wasn't the one who said, "I'd rather write my story than be president." I've been an actor for more than a half century. Many have said I was a bad actor. Others have said I was a good fellow. Whatever I have been, or am, I am still going strong.

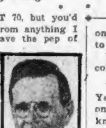
I AM ALMOST 70, but you'd never know it from anything I say or do. I have the pep of youth. People there have been who called me the hardest drinker in the world. Maybe. But now I'm the softest drinker in the world. True. I have not touched a drop of liquor in eight years. Honest. On the water wagon to stay. It was my tribute to my second wife. I think it is the sweetest tribute a man can pay to a woman. I loved her so much I quit for keeps. I stuck to my decision. I am glad of it. I ran a long road of drinking. It lasted though 40 years of my life. I did drink hard.



Jim Thornton

YOU'D BE SURPRISED were I to tell you how much I drank. I would average three or four quarts of whiskey a day. That extended over the 40-year period. Did you ever hear of anyone who drank harder stuff or more of it?

And I didn't confine myself to whiskey; I drank all sorts and conditions of booze. But I always kept up with my work, and wrote my best songs when under the influence of liquor. I do not say that to encourage drinking; not for a moment. But I do say that this was my failing, and my strength. It is my individual trait. I worked hard all through those forty years, too. And made money. . . . And drank it all up.

MY HEALTH now is perfect. The doctors say whiskey is the greatest preservative known to man. And I sure am a well preserved man.

I never did want the wide open saloon.

All I asked was just to have it open wide enough for me to get in.

I drank about everything under the sun, good and bad, indifferent. I saved nothing. Now I am just beginning to save my money. I am going to keep on saving. Before I die I want to own my own home.

I am a dry by choice—not by compunction.

I WAS ONCE a Bostonian. Yes, sirree. Why, I used to live on Salutation at. Do you know where that is? In the North End. I graduated from the Elliot school, in North Bennett st. John F. Fitzgerald was in the same school at the same time. You call him Honey Fitz now, but we boys dubbed him Sugar Fitz. Why? Because his dad ran a grocery, and Sugar Fitz used to bring us boys sugar from the store; he he fed it to us. And we liked it, and him. I always get a kick out of confabbing with him. Not long ago he visited me backstage in New York, and we had a dandy time together, talking of olden days in the North End.

FARCE HIT AT TWIN HOUSES

The funniest farce in weeks is "The Matrimonial Bed," which is now at the Modern and Beacon. "The Matrimonial Bed" is mature comedy with few dull moments. The story concerns the confusion that overcomes a French family when a first husband, supposedly dead for five years, turns up at an inopportune time, a victim of amnesia. Without knowledge of the intervening years, he proceeds to take up life where he left off.

Frank Fay Lilyan Tashman and Florence Eldridge acquit themselves well. Beryl Mercer has built her part into one of the important touches of the production. James Gleason as the irritable second husband runs Frank Fay a good second in laughs.

In Vaudeville

Hoot Gibson is planning a personal appearance on an RKO vaudeville tour, having made no picture affiliation after completing his contract with Universal.

PEPPY FILM ON SCREEN AT KEITH'S

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

AMONG TALKIES "A Lady Surrenders" is as refreshing as an East wind after a hot spell. It takes situations as good deal out of the common run and presents them in an amusing vein, along with some rattling good dialogue. Toss in the facts that the acting is above par and that the direction is excellent, and we have given the reasons why the New B. F. Keith's feature picture this week should prove pleasing change in film fare.

JOHN ERSKINE supplied the plot. It is the warp and woof of his novel, "Sincerity." The land of make-believe presents us Conrad Nagel wedded to Rose Hobart, a talented lady from the stage. Her role is that of a writer of fiction, who is bored with her husband. She accuses him of being too friendly with her friend, played by Genevieve Tobin, another classy actress from the "legit." So Rose flies to Paris, bent on getting a divorce. She falls in love with a foreigner who illis her. This sends her hotfoot back overseas, only to find that Conrad has been wedded to her best friend.

The latter tries suicide after an unpleasant meeting of the three persons making up the Erskine triangle. The thing is ironed out quite nicely, thank you; and so the fade-out finds us all happy after seeing and hearing an unusually good talking picture.

IT IS TRUE that "A Lady Surrenders" has all the talkie limitations. Dialogue holds it to stage settings mostly, and yet Mr. Erskine has written so well that the speeches are worth listening to. And John Stahl has lent skills aid in directing the picture with deft hand and clever brain. Of the actors, the Misses Tobin and Hobart are superb, and both should do well in the movies. Mr. Nagel and Basil Rathbone are best among the males in the cast.

One can recommend "A Lady Surrenders" for a pleasant entertainment.

COOKS OFTEN MAY SPOIL THE BROTH

Once upon a time the qualifications needed for an acting career were a good voice and a good appearance and an intelligent understanding of how to use both. But with the coming in of recent years of realistic plays, actors have had to learn a good many other accomplishments. In gunmen melodramas, actors must learn to fire pistols in regulation "guerilla" fashion.

For "When Hell Froze," the new play which will begin a one-week engagement at the Wilbur this evening the two leading players have had to learn much more complicated matters. Jane Cowl, who will be seen in the star part, has had to learn to cook. Or, rather, since she knew how to cook, has had to pick up the culinary art again after being out of practice for some years.

She performs a good deal of cooking in "When Hell Froze" right on the stage before the audience—and not only is it important for her to do the cooking in a plausible manner, so that the audience will take her portrayal of a New England farmwife as a true portrayal, but the cooking must prove its worth in the eating.

Arthur Hohl, another member of the cast, has also had to pick up a difficult accomplishment. As a carefree, philandering tramp Hickey he is required to play several tunes on a harmonica. Never having played on the instrument before,

Fine and Dandy!

The wise guyzo who likes his burlesque straight will find it "fine and dandy" at the Howard this week, where we are putting across the mutual concoction known as "FINE FEATHERS" BURLESQUE, and that's the right name for it. With a line that goes big. All the hokes in the line-up know the game from kick-off to goal. The boys will get 'em and the girls will get 'em. Margie Bartel, a clever little bit of femininity with class galore. Art Gardner and Harry Levine work in double harness in great shape. Just give everything else the slide and hop this way. Always something doing 1 till 11 at the Old Howard.

Ounce of Prevention Worth Pound of Cure

"La diffidenza e la madre della sicurta," say the Italians, politely informing us, "Caution is the mother of safety." We have a homely old New England expression pointedly carrying the same warning, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Having approached from both Italian and Yankee angles the coming Carnera-Maloney match, a ring encounter of such importance as will cause the eyes of the sporting world to focus on Boston on October 7, let's get down to the hole in the doughnut and the bend in the spaghetti without any more feints, sparring or feeling out. The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN believes the big match should be surrounded by every precaution and safeguard, and respectfully offers a suggestion which will help provide such a safeguard, assure the customers they will be given a run for their money, and guarantee that neither the Italian Man Mountain nor the ex-fisherman from "T" Wharf will do anything that will cause the fair name of sport in Massachusetts to suffer.

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN herein suggests to Matchmaker Alex McLean of the Boston Garden, by and with the support of the Massachusetts State Boxing Commission, that he compel both contestants in the big bout on October 7 to wear the new foul proof protector, which makes it utterly impossible for a boxer to be incapacitated by a blow below the belt, and which thus assures and guarantees those who pay their money at the box office that there will be no abrupt ending of the encounter through a foul or alleged foul and that the contest will be decided by a clean knockout or a clean victory on points.

The eyes of the sporting world will be on Boston on October 7. There has not been a match, save the world's heavyweight championship between Sharkey and Schmeling, staged in years which carries the popular appeal of the encounter that will be waged in the Boston Garden on October 7. Boxing will be before the bar here on October 7. The big encounter will not only be witnessed by our own patrons of boxing.

The match takes place at a time when the members of posts of the American Legion from all over the country will be assembled here. The majority of them will storm the Garden to see the big encounter. Thousands of other fans from all over the East will come here for the match. Large metropolitan newspapers in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other big cities already have wired for press reservations and special wires.

News of what takes place in the Garden ring on October 7 will be flashed to far corners of the world, will go out over the air to distant ships at sea, will be heard in isolated farmhouses and cabins far, far from the scene of the encounter, will penetrate wherever the all-powerful voice of the radio can reach. The whole world will be listening in on October 7.

ISN'T IT WORTH IT?

Yes, Boxing, Boston, the old Bay State itself, will be before the bar on October 7.

Isn't it fitting that every precaution be taken to guarantee that nothing take place in the Garden ring on October 7 that will reflect on boxing, Boston or the grand old Bay State?

We believe so, friend fans. We believe you believe so, too. If we didn't we would not be writing this, for this column is yours more than ours, is meant to reflect your views, not ours.

The only ones who have raised their voices against the use of the new foul proof protector are the crooked managers, boxers and parasites, who care nothing for the sport of boxing, not even for the business of boxing, and who, to line their own purse would, for the sake of one "clean-up," ruin both the sport of boxing and the business of boxing forever.

Those slimy gentry are like the donkey of the Italian fable. "L'animal delle lunghe orecchie," literally, the long-eared animal, "depo aver beveto da calci al secchio," having drunk, gives a kick to the bucket.

Yes, the parasites who infest professional sport of all kinds, have, after glutting themselves, kicked the bucket over many times before and will do so many times again. They forever are endangering the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"Fouling out" long has been a favorite "out" for crooked boxers who would not lose honestly. The new foul proof protector makes it impossible for a crooked boxer to lose in that way. It furthermore protects the spectators, the patrons of boxing, those who pay the money that makes the mare go, from having a boxing encounter abruptly ended through the landing of a chance and mayhap utterly unintentional low blow.

There are plenty of rules protecting the boxers. Isn't it about time a few rules were made, precautions taken, to protect the customers?

The crooked, slimy gentry who seek to prevent the use of the foul proof protector craftily whisper in the ear of some of the boxing experts:

DON'T BELIEVE 'EM!

"Why according to the rules you can't use this new protector. It permits a boxer to land as many low blows as he wants without losing. Why it was since the early days of boxing a low blow meant the loss of the contest!"

That's a lie. That's a lie—If you will permit us to use the short and ugly, but truthful, word.

The landing of low blows in a contest in which the contestants wear the new foul proof protector carries about the same penalties as always. If a boxer was not actually incapacitated by a low blow, or "faked it," have you ever seen a contest stopped because of it? Unless the low blow incapacitated a rival the offender always has escaped with a warning. Now in contests in which foul proof protectors are worn the landing of a low blow means the loss of the round. It furthermore rests with the judgment of referee and judges at the end of the encounter to base their decision on the number, or intent, or flagrancy, of any or all punches delivered below the belt.

Boxing, Boston and the grand old Bay State will be safeguarded in the coming big ring attraction, Mr. Alex McLean, Garden matchmaker, and you, honorable members of the Massachusetts State Boxing Commission, if you refuse to allow the giant Carnera and Maloney to enter the ring on October 7 without wearing the new foul proof protector.

The foul proof protector not only protects the boxers. It protects the customers. After all, isn't it up to you to protect the patrons of boxing? The boxers and managers can protect themselves.

CAN SHAMUS CONQUER THE MIGHTY MAN MOUNTAIN?

JIM MALONEY

PRIMO CARNERA

JIM MALONEY

PRIMO CARNERA GLANCES ADMIRINGLY at his gloved fists with which he has bowled over every opponent who has stepped into a ring with him since his invasion of America. His antagonist in the Boston Garden show on the evening of October 7, Jimmy Maloney of South Boston, pushes out his barrel-like chest and displays his muscular back development. Maloney is one of the biggest and most experienced men, save George Godfrey, that Primo will face and the fans are wondering whether or not Jimmy, big of body and strong of arm, can withstand those destructive mitts of the Ambling Alp.

FOXX PICKS A'S TO TAKE SERIES

By JIMMIE FOXX
First Baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics

Copyright, 1930, By Universal Service Inc.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (US)—I think the Cardinals this year are a stronger and better balanced team than the Cubs were last year.

The National League pennant winners certainly showed their class by playing about .800 baseball in the closing stages of the race, and for that reason I look for a closely contested world series.

Naturally, I think the Athletics will win. But from a purely unbiased standpoint, I feel that we have the better pitchers and the better hitters. I think the final averages will show that we had the best fielding team in the league.

That is a combination which is pretty hard to beat—and I think the Cardinals will find it so.

I know they will.

The fact that we cinched the pennant more than a week before the race was over, I consider a strong point in our favor. Our pitchers have been given a much-needed rest and the team as a whole is in the best possible physical condition.

However, it should be emphasized that we are not and will not take the Cardinals lightly. They proved their class when they took three straight from Brooklyn, when the pennant was at stake. And they won those games against pitching of first water.

Cards Will Face Superior Pitching

That fact is important, because it is very certain that Gabby Street and Co., in the World Series will run up against what is probably the best pitching in the American League.

My status as a forecaster is purely amateur, therefore it is with much hesitancy that I predict the outcome of the World Series. But I guess my prediction will not do any harm, as everybody seems to be doing it.

Pay $1000 for Betty Nuthall's Racquet

S. S. Mauretania, Sept. 28 (AP)—The tennis raquet with which Betty Nuthall recently won the American women's tennis championship was auctioned off in mid-Atlantic today for nearly a thousand dollars.

Put up for charity, the racquet was first sold to an anonymous bidder for $600. The bidder immediately returned it for resale and it brought $300.

At dinner Betty and her brother James were entertained by Capt. S. G. S. Moniet and the other officers of the Mauretania. The passengers in the dining saloon drank an enthusiastic toast to the tennis star.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

B. U. PREPARES FOR N. H. GAME

Boston University eleven will go through a light workout today and start intensive practice tomorrow in preparation for its first home game at Nickerson Field, Saturday, against the University of New Hampshire.

Only the members of the squad who did not play against the Army Saturday will work out today. The rest of the team will be given a chance to recuperate from the effects of the battering received in the hands of the Army.

Although the Terriers received quite a drubbing at the Michie Stadium, there was no member of the team badly hurt, and the entire squad will be ready for the Wildcats Saturday.

Coaches Mahaney and Marsters are optimistic despite the 39 to 0 score rolled up by the Cadets Saturday.

Women's Tennis Starts at Longwood

Mrs. William C. Shedden has been seeded first in the draw for the women's annual open fall tennis tournament which will start tomorrow morning in the grass courts of the Lingwood Cricket Club. Play in doubles and mixed doubles will start Wednesday. Others seeded in order are Miss Marjorie Sachs, Miss Dorrance Chase and Mrs. William Homans.

Horween Drills Harvard for Opener With Vermont

Harvard starts a wind up week of hard scrimmage at Soldiers Field today, preparatory to opening the 1930 grid season against Vermont next Saturday.

Coach Arnold Horween, while not greatly concerned with the Green Mountain eleven, will spend most of this week shifting his A and B eleven in an effort to uncover any latent talent.

The fact is that the Harvard mentor as yet has found no solution to his wing problem. Just who to use in place of the first string ends, Vic Harding and Bob Ogden, in giving Horween plenty of trouble just now.

Horween was a spectator at Hanover as the Indians rolled up an impressive score on Norwich. The Cantab grid professor now realizes that he has a tremendous job on his hands if Harvard is to turn back the Indian invaders October 25.

The Harvard forces will scrimmage today, and at least twice more this week, preparatory to entering the lists against Vermont.

Insamuch as Vermont has already taken a pasting from Amherst to the tune of 24-0, Horween will probably give his second team the assignment next Saturday.

A logical guess as to the Harvard lineup against the Green Mountain boys would be that Horween will start his A line and B backfield. This is indicated in the fact that Horween has used this combination steadily for the past week.

Batchelder May Earn First Team Berth

Harvard fans are looking for further changes in the A and B team lineups this week. One change that is expected is in the status of Sam Batchelder, who has been coming fast on the come-back trail.

Batchelder, though rated somewhere between second and third string material, at present holds all the scoring honors around Soldiers Field, and is said to be giving Charlie Devens a great battle for the left half position on Horween's A team.

Horween has his eye on Batchelder, and it is likely that the brawny Milton boy will be in the starting lineup Saturday in place of Devens.

The Harvard line, while improving, is nowhere near at the top of its form. Horween has as yet not made up his mind as to any fixtures in the line.

CARDS WILL WIN—BOTTOMLEY

By JIM BOTTOMLEY
First Baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

St. Louis, Sept. 29—The rise of the Cardinals from nowhere in particular in August, to the pennant winners in the last week of the season should be ample evidence that we do not intend to stop until we have the world championship safely tucked away.

The old college slogan that "you can't beat a team that won't be beaten" applies mightily well to the Cards. I see that several sports writers have called us lucky, but we have been anything but that.

We all know that the Athletics have a mighty fine ball club, but they are not invincible by any means. They got all the breaks against the Cubs last year, and I consider the 1929 Red Birds superior in almost every department to the 1929 Bruins.

I think we will beat the Mackmen because we have a bunch of men who are at their best when playing under difficulties—who play best when the most is at stake.

Cards Will Duplicate Feat of 1914 Braves

Possibly no team, except the Braves of 1914, have played such inspired baseball as the Cards have the latter part of this season.

Everyone recalls how this great Boston club took four straight from Mack's so-called perfect team in the World Series that year.

Will history repeat itself?

I think it will. I feel sure of it. And there are plenty of facts to back up this view.

In later articles I will go into the details of the hitting and pitching and fielding strength of both teams, but today I want to emphasize that I think we excel any team in either league in team play. We are a mighty happy family that effervesces with the desire and will to win.

To Wait 96 Hours for Series Ducat

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (INS)—Billy Sullivan, Philadelphia's one-man crowd, again today stormed Shibe Park seeking the first bleacher ticket to the World Series games, starting Wednesday.

Billy was arrested at the park Saturday night for building a fire in the street, but after a few hours in jail was released and returned to his long wait.

He will accomplish a 96-hour watching before the first tickets go on sale, but Billy is not worried. He says he is accustomed to fasting and don't care to eat until after the first game is over. He has wit hhim an umbrella, a pair of slippers, overshoes, a sweater and shaving equipment.

LOCAL BOY IS BRAINS OF DEFENSE

(This is the fourth and final of a series of comparisons of the Philadelphia Athletics, American League champions, and the St. Louis Cardinals, National League pennant winners, written by Joe Cashman, baseball expert of the Boston Evening American.)

By JOE CASHMAN

In this final pre-world's series article dealing with the relative merits of the Athletics and Cardinals, we will consider catchers and strategy boards.

Mickey Cochrane, a native of Bridgewater and a product of Boston University, is the Mackian catcher. Many critics rate him the greatest receiver ever. Certain it is that he's in a class by himself in this era.

Joe Cashman

Cochrane will do all the catching for the A's and his presence behind the plate will make the American Leaguers far superior to their rivals in this department.

Next to Al Simmons young Mr. Cochrane is the most important cog in the Mack machine. He's the brains of the outfit on defense; he's the second best hitter in the lineup with a mark of close to .360; he's an expert handler of pitchers, a perfect receiver and a wonderful thrower. And, like Simmons, he's an inspiration to his mates.

The Cards' regular catcher is Jimmy Wilson. He may or may not see action in the series. Several weeks ago he was injured and hasn't played since.

Mancuso Has Proven to Be Great Catcher

The Mound City entry won't be weakened any, however, if Wilson is unable to face the A's, and Gus Mancuso, who has been filling in, has to stay on the job.

In fact, Mancuso has proved himself just as good a receiver and a much better hitter than Wilson, and even if the latter is fit to work, the youngster may still get the call.

The Cards can thank Judge Landis for having had Mancuso around to save them when Wilson was hurt early in their drive to the top.

Manager Gabby Street wanted to farm the youngster out last spring, but the commissioner ruled that he would have to be retained or released outright. Fortunately for the Cards, they decided to keep him. Otherwise, they would never have won the flag.

Mancuso is not a Cochrane, of course, and never will be. The same applies to Wilson, but both are fair enough catchers, and the Cards, while they will be outclassed back of the bat, won't be weak there.

Now we come to the strategy boards. Even in this day of the lively ball, brains are important in baseball, especially in a short series, and the managers and coaches of the rivals must be considered.

At the helm of the A's is Connie Mack, dean of big league pilots, who has steered nine winning pennants away back in 1905. There's nothing that he doesn't know about the game, and there's nobody else in baseball wise unless it be John McGraw, veteran pilot of the New York Giants.

Athletics Want to Win for Beloved Leader

The venerable Connie is both manager and father to his players. Each and every one of his charges not only respects but loves the old man. Their motto is "Win for Connie."

The Cards have no such love for Gabby Street, former Washington catcher, who is serving his first season as manager of the National League champions.

Yet Street must be plenty smart and he must command the respect of his men or he couldn't possibly have won out in the hectic National League race.

Connie Mack has two stellar assistants in Eddie Collins, one of the greatest second basemen ever, and Kid Gleason, a veteran with almost as much experience as his boss, and rated as one of the smartest minds in the game while he was pilot of the White Sox a dozen years or so ago.

Street's aides are Ray Blades, a substitute outfielder, and Clyde Ware, a comparative unknown in diamond circles.

The Philly trio should out-smart the Cardinal masterminds, but what, if any, advantage they will gain by doing so remains to be seen.

New York, Sept. 29—The Brooklyn Wanderers lost to the New York Soccer Club at Hawthorne Field, 4 to 0.

New York had the better of the breaks in today's game while the Wanderers were without the services of some of their regular players and their defense was poor. The fans shouted their disapproval of the referee, claiming he failed to whistle for offside play,

Providence Wrought Only Upset in Grid Openings

DOMINICANS DEFEATED RUTGERS

By BILL GRIMES

In reviewing the outcome of the opening games of the college season, Providence College contributed the outstanding feat. The Dominicans supplied the first upset of the season by downing Rutgers.

High honors should be awarded to Rhode Island State for holding Brown to a lone touchdown and to Bates and Colby for their victories over Mass. Aggies and Wesleyan, respectively.

Bill Grimes

Other than the Georgetown-Mt. St. Mary's, Indiana - Miami and the Michigan - Michigan Normal tilts, the opening games were all "push - overs," and, judging from the scores, many of the small colleges went down without waiting for the push. Georgetown and Indiana were restricted to a couple of tallies, while "The Teachers" held Coach Harry Kipke's charges to 7 to 0 in the second game of a double header.

Scores ran exceptionally high in many cases and the ease with which some of the big boys piled up points may react later in the season. In the case of college football teams, over-confidence is as easily acquired as a head cold and as difficult to cure as boils. In fact, over-confidence, when is a two dollar word for conceit, is one of the most serious problems football coaches have to handle.

Colleges elevens, which ran roughshod over opponents on Saturday, provided, of course, they are under the direction of clever coaches, will not be on the receiving end of any complimentary remarks, but they will have plenty concerning the blocks they missed and the failure to take advantage of openings and opportunities.

Dartmouth Strength Impresses Harvard Coaches

The Harvard scouts, who watched Yale, Dartmouth and West Point in action, returned home with a clearer realization of the enlargment they face to bring the Crimson up to the standard of the Elis, Indians and Army.

Head Coach Arnold Horween, Dike Doane and Billy Murray were in Hanover and were strongly impressed by Dartmouth. Eskie Clark and Eddie Bradford went down to the Bowl, and the latter was keenly impressed by the end play of Noonan, a newcomer to the Yale varsity. Jimmy Knox, Eddie Casey and Dr. Walter Clarey sat in on the West Point-U. S. game, but did not get much of an opportunity to see the Army at war strength.

Bob Lee, a senior, who entered Dartmouth with a fine reputation as a football and track man, stole the show for Hanover. Lee began his career in football at Dartmouth as a fullback, then was converted into a half and now he is getting a try at quarter. Handicapped by poor eyesight, Lee has failed to register and he is a fourth string field general. Despite this misfortune he is battling such stars as Wild Bill McCall, Bill Morton, Eddie Toothaker and Dan Rollins for the tactics director's berth.

In spite of the fact that Nowich is not as strong as the average big prep school eleven, the Dartmouth offense is smoother, stronger and more versatile than the attack in vogue a year ago. Jack Cannell is taking advantage of the abundance and classy array of ball carriers at Dartmouth, which should be a vast improvement of the 1929 system, which centered around one player, the quarterback.

Fordham Tallies Eleven Times

Meeting even weaker opposition then did Boston College, Fordham scored 11 touchdowns against Hamline, while the Capt. John Mc-Ewen-coached Holy Cross squad nicked the Shawsburg eleven for 20 points, all of which were the result of touchdowns.

Columbia and New York U. found Middlebury and Hobart weak and the up-State New York elevens, Cornell, Syracuse and Colgate won without a struggle, as did Pitt and Penn State.

Two of the "Little Three." Williams and Amherst, came through but Wesleyan did not measure up to Eddie Roundy's Colby outfit. Bates displayed more power and a better brand of football than the garnet eleven has had at this season of the year and already predictions are that Dave Morey will bring another championship to Lewiston.

Five Western Conference universities played and with the exception of Indiana, all romped through to one sided victories which was to be expected, while among the aspirants for high honors in the Southern Conference, Tulane, last year's winners, broke away to a fine start with an 58 to 0 win over Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

REASONS WHY LYNN ENGLISH IS A FOOTBALL LEADER

CAN'T STOP HIM. Tony Geniawicz, crashing fullback of Lynn English, who carried the ball four times in the opening game with Manning High and scored four touchdowns and scored four more last Saturday. He's close to six feet tall and weighs 195 pounds. He's undecided, at this early date, the best fullback in scholastic circles.

COMING THROUGH. George Chipouras, giant tackle on the Lynn English High eleven, knows no obstacles. He crashes through and gets his man. He's showing how above as he brushes aside an opposing tackle to ruin the hopes of some hostile ball carrier. He will play against Medford on Saturday.

NAME UMPIRES FOR SERIES

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—J. E. (Jack) Reardon and Charles Rigler will be the National League umpires in the World Series, President John Heydler announced today. For the Chicago city series President Heydler named E. C. Quigley and Cal Hagerthorn.

Chicago, Sept. 29 (INS)—George Moriarty and Harry C. Geisel have been selected as American League umpires for the World Series, according to an announcement made at league headquarters here today.

Cards Arrive at Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, full of pep and confidence, arrived here this afternoon, to make ready to meet the world's champion Athletics at Shibe Park in the first World's Series game on Wednesday.

There were few persons at the railroad station to meet the wingers of the National League pennant, who immediately drove to their hotel in taxicabs.

Manager Gabby Street said the players will relax after their long ride from St. Louis. The team will have a workout at Shibe Park tomorrow.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

We have now noted that distance with the golf ball results from smoothness of action with the club which means giving yourself full swing h, and that great distance results not from forcing and lunging the club, but from speeding it just slightly beyond the ordinary practice swing pace. The first step toward the development of full distance with your shots would be, I would say, the determination to use your easy, natural practice swing in your regular play. Use that until you get into the way of swinging easily and smoothly, and until you see how easily the full golf swing is made. Then you can gradually speed up the action little by little, and not by lunging and struggling with the club, but by so controlling your muscular system that you can increase clubhead velocity and at the same time keep your correct bodily relationship. You can acquire this in time, but not all at once. You can acquire it this way because the beginning with your easy, smooth practice swing, will of itself lead you along correctly toward smoother, more graceful swinging, which will lead you to concern yourself with timing rather than slugging. These principles, in turn, will loose for you that long-sought secret—distance. Go get it!

Eagles Impressive in Win

SHOULD MEET WITH MUCH SUCCESS

By RALPH GILROY,
All-American Halfback at Princeton College

The Boston College coaches can start today to polish up and elaborate on their offense with a feeling of security that a good foundation has been laid for the development of a high-class eleven. The Maroon and Gold squad, byt the decisiveness of its victory over C. U. Saturday afternoon, gave a Fenway gathering plenty of evidence of its ability to reach a high berth among the Eastern elevens for this season of 1930.

Large scores against early season weak opposition are not always indicative of success against future big time elevens. If touchdowns result from individual brilliant performance where smooth team play is lacking, these same touchdowns are apt not to be forthcoming against stronger opponents later in the season. If Boston College's eight touchdowns were due to individual feats of brilliance against C. U. Saturday, which they were not, it would be too early to predict any measure of success for McKenney's athletes.

On the contrary, a high powered, smooth running offense, with a heavy, alert forward line co-ordinating effectively with the B. C. ball carriers, enabled the Maroon and Gold players to run rough shod over the lighter Cardinal opponents.

Add to this an effective display of the fundamentals of football: blocking, tackling, and interfering, and you have the reasons why the B. C. supporters are so optimistic for a great season.

Your correspondent leans to the view that the B. C. coaches, Joe McKenney, "Tiny" McManmon and Bill Ormsby, are a little surer of their plans of attack this season than they were a year ago. In the opening game of 1929 the Eagle attack was ragged, due in a large measure to the experimentation with new plays which Coach Joe was giving his athletes.

Last Saturday against C. U. the Eagles used only about five plays, but these five were executed flawlessly and confidently by McKenney's players. Every man on the squad, even to the last substitute, knew his assignment on each play and carried it out without hesitation.

Individuals Stand Out

While the Eagle team play was what impressed more than the size of the score, there were individuals whose performances stood out Saturday on the Fenway gridiron. Capt. Johnny Dixon had a lot to do with starting his men on the road to victory. Johnny's long kicks were pleasing to watch and will certainly be a big factor against the fall against B. C.'s major opponents.

With the game but two minutes old, Dixon snared an aerial toss from the right arm of Mike Mahoney for the Eagle's first score of the game. Because of his 6 foot 3 inch reach, Dixon is ideally set up to make the B. C. forward pass offense go. Buckley makes an ideal running mate to Dixon on the other extremity of the Maroon and Gold forward wall. Buckley had a field day Saturday snagging a 40-yard hoist from Colbert, and later in the game blocking a C. U. punt to score six more markers for the Eagle cause.

Buckley is a well set up, rangy lad who promises to make Joe Kenney forget the loss of Murphy, the brilliant wing of the past two seasons.

In the center of the Eagle rush line Anderson, at the pivotal post, and Morelli at guard, looked like Stonewall Jackson himself. Many of B. C.'s future opponents will know they have hit something when they strike this pair. Anderson's passing Saturday was faultless and his tackling deadly. Morelli buried the opposition on defense and made some nice interference for the B. C. running backs. The whole front line, both first string and substitute, is big, strong and alert.

In the backfield, the old favorites of last fall, Antos, Colbert, Marr and the rest looked immense. Colbert has retained all his old skill at tossing the pigskin. A couple of this lad's tosses traveled from 40 to 50 yards, straight as a die. The Maroon and Gold field general makes an ideal ball heaver because he has the knack of coolness under fire if you will, to wait until his receivers are clear of the enemy defenses before he lets fire.

Finalists in Miniature Golf to Be Selected This Week

This is the third week of the Boston Evening American Miniature Golf Tournament and everything is in readiness for the big events.

Two players, a man a woman, will be selected to represent each course in the finals at the Boston Garden later in the week.

Early in the week, there will be a semi-final at each course for five men and five women. The two players with the lowest scores will be designated by the course managers to represent the course in the finals at the Garden.

Full particulars of the Garden event and semi-finals will be announced in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Valuable prizes will be offered at each course for both men and women this week. In cases where there were ties for lowest scores last week, a special play-off will take place tonight and the winners of last week's prizes will be announced as soon as the winners are known.

FIVE CUPS FOR BOBBY JONES

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Robert T. Jones, Jr., will have five golf cups in his custody for the next year instead of four. The United States Golf Association decided today that since Jones, who was captain of the last two Walker Cup teams, had had all the other emblems of national championships in his possession, he should have the Walker Cup too. It was shipped to Atlanta today.

The Walker Cup, emblematic of international team supremacy, has been retained by the U. S. G. A. offices and never has been sent to an individual. Under the extraordinary circumstances attached to Jones winning the open and amateur championships of the United States and the open and amateur championships of Great Britain, it was decided to place the five cups in one group.

Dentists to Hold Tourney Today

The Massachusetts Dental Golf Association will hold its annual fall tournament today at the Pine Brook Valley Golf Club, Weston.

The usual fine prizes will be awarded in the different classes for best net and gross scores.

Gangland Exposed in the Most Thrilling Serial You'll Ever Read

Kinky King Orders 'The Kid' Killed

"OH KID," cried Polack Annie, as she warned him of the dangerous Kinky King, "watch out, take care o' yourself—take no chance—if anything happened to you——"

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

"The Edgewater Kid," whom Polack Annie, beautiful daughter of the underworld, called her man, is killed by a machine gun planted in a window across from his room. Annie is arrested, but bailed out by Goldie Gorio, leader of Chicago's North Side gang, of which the Kid was a member. Goldie's henchmen accuse Kinky King, head of the West Side gang, of the murder. Gorio assures the reporters there will be no payoff. The same evening Kinky King is found murdered, a gold revolver beside him. Some four weeks preceding the murders the kid, who had stolen Annie from Kinky King, entered The Devil's Hall, a gangsters' rendezvous and Kinky King, sitting there with a blonde, swore he'd get even.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 3

POLACK ANNIE sat on a cushion at the feet of the Edgewater Kid. She turned her big, opalescent eyes upward. They lit with passionate pride at what they took in. The kid was a handsome thing.

"Kid," she breathed, "I never knew what love was till I met you."

He stroked her fiery hair. He purred. He relaxed and drew deep upon his cigarette.

"Kid," she sighed, "I wish I'd never met Kinky King."

"If you hadn't," he puffed, "you prob'ly never would o' met me."

"I mean I wish I could o' met you an' never o' met him. He's a wicked baby, that Kinky. He's tough, boy—he's plenty tough."

"I've met a few what are tough, sugar—an' my experience with 'em has been that when it comes right down to a showdown you hit 'em in the mush with a cream puff an' you pick 'em up with a sponge."

She looked alarmed.

"Oh, honey—don't rate Kinky in that class. He's a killer. He'd knock off his brother an' never turn to spit. When he was givin' you an' the rest o' Goldie Gorio's mob the works, man, I was with him—I know."

"We trimmed him, didn't we?"

"No—I don't think youse did—it was about give an' take."

Kid Chuckled

"Oh, was it? When Goldie an' us was barricaded in our headquarters him an' his yeller outfit, 12 cars strong, shot by at 5 miles an hour an' turned loose typewriters on us an' riddled the buildin'—an' croaked a woman an' a kid on the sidewalk—an' kep' on steppin'—I don't call that tough."

"Oh, no? That's tough enough for me. Jus' becus he's that kind o' rat what takes as few chances for himself as he can an' mows down anybody what's in his way in some such manner as this, is why I say he's dangerous . . . oh, Kid, watch ont—take care o' yourself—take no chances—if anything happened to you—"

"Gee," he said, "it's fine to have you care that much. But don't let it worry one red hair o' your sweet dome, babe. They ain' takin' the Edgewater Kid for no rides. I'm too fast for 'em. An' they know in their crooked hearts that if anything happens to me, Goldie an' my buddies'll clean 'em out like the inside of a fish. Kinky's takin' down a flock o' jack. He's got the whole West Side. He's ridin' easy an' sitting pretty. He ain't suckin' aroun' for no trouble—least of all with Goldie."

She shook her head slowly, solemnly.

"You don' know him, Kid—I tell you, you don' know him. He lushes his own stuff. He don' handle the real McCoy. He shoves that Wop bathtub slop. An' he guzzles it himself. An' when he swills up a bellyful o' that hogwash, he goes cookoo. He bulldozes his boys an' there ain't a one of 'em peeps back at him. I tell when he's that way he ain't himan."

He Kissed Her

"A hunk o' lead don' know the difference, beautiful, whether a man is cockeyed or sober, or if he's tirs tread or putty. They never made one yet so tough he could shed bullets."

"I know—I know. If he gets you, they'll get him. But what good'll that do me? I don' want revenge. I don' want nothin'—nothin' but you—you—that's all—"

"Well, what you bleatin' about? You got me."

"But," and she scrambled on her knees and embraced his thighs and buried her head in his chest, "I want you always—forever—you—just you—for me—with me—and, oh, Kid, my lover, I'm so scared—so worried——"

U. S. REFUSES TO APPROVE CHANGES

$3,000,000 Program for Essex St. and South Station Offices Doomed

Plans for closing the Essex st. postoffice and changes that would make for fast assortment and handling of mail at South Station ran into a snag today when approval failed in Washington.

According to Asst. Postmaster William E. Hurley, the plans follow closely suggestions made by postal inspectors who have been surveying conditions here for the last year.

The program outlined was to cost in the vicinity of $3,000,000 but according to the assistant postmaster they probably now will be dropped.

"Transferring of 47 carriers to the Burlington ave. station from the Stuart st. station is to meet requirements which have arisen in the Back Bay section in consequence of the closing some time ago of the station in Huntington ave., near Massachusetts ave. These carriers went to work today."

GIRL RUNAWAYS FLEE MILTON

Two runaway Milton girls, believed to be with a man in an automobile, were sought today by police and federal officials. All entrances into Canada are being watched.

The runaways are Margaret Devir, 14, of Hudson st., and her chum, Phyllis Jordan, 18, of Essex st., who vanished Friday night.

Investigation by Milton police brought information of a telephone call said to have been made to Roland Emery of Peterboro, N. H., asking him to meet them at an auto camp in Marlboro.

Young Emery told the officers he went to the camp yesterday, but was informed the girls had left with a man in an automobile.

Chance of Election Hopeless; Prays Fate Be Kind

A "prayer" of a Democrat in a Republican district reached the State House today in the most unusual letter of nomination acceptance ever received at the office of State Secretary Frederic W. Cook.

It came from Eugene S. Taylor, nominated by Democrats of the 3rd Norfolk district, which includes Quincy, on stickers.

The law requires acceptance of such a nomination and this is what Taylor wrote:

"I would say that I accept the nomination and I pray that Fate will look kindly on the hopeless and heroic."

Prize Dog, Saver of Drowning Persons, Listed as Stolen

Bull was Ruthwise, who recently demonstrated on Magazine Beach how a three-year-old hero saves a boy's life, is on today's list of missing.

Bull is a three-year-old prize police dog owned by Lester Morrison of 84 Banks st., Cambridge. He vanished Saturday night from Harvard Stadium, where Morrison is a watchman. His owner believes he was stolen.

Bull came into fame a short time ago when he swam out into the Charles River and dragged back to Magazine Beach a boy who pretended to be drowning.

WILD CHASE AFTER MAN FOUND IN OFFICE

Suspect in Burglary Throws Away Machine Gun Pistol, Keeps List of Financiers

A thrilling chase through downtown streets amid crowds on their way to work today ended with the capture of William H. Corrigan, 33, of Buffalo, in an alley off Bromfield st.

His capture was due to detective work on the part of Atty. Herbert R. Morse, who saw Corrigan leaving his office in the Exchange building, 53 State st., a streak of luck, the combined efforts of several police and a display of nerve by a group of civilians who cornered the fugitive.

A machine gun pistol of foreign manufacture was tossed away by Corrigan just before his arrest, according to the police.

HAD LISTED FINANCIERS

In his possession was found a black notebook containing the addresses of several prominent Boston attorneys and bankers, and what is believed to be a skeleton key.

Atty. Morse arrived at his office earlier than usual and saw Corrigan leaving. Morse told a porter to go down the elevator and watch outside the building, but Corrigan went down nine flights of stairs and escaped, presumably by the rear exit.

The lawyer walked to Court sq. to report to the police, forgetting Station 2 had been moved to Milk st. The mistake brought luck for in Court sq. he saw his man.

Morse followed Corrigan through City Hall ave. and beckoned to Patrolman Joseph Smith, assigned to the mayor's office.

CROWD DEFIES GUN

Corrigan broke into a run and the chase went through Province st., across Bromfield st. and into a blind alley, where civilians, who had joined the chase and were in the lead of Morse and Smith, caught the fugitive.

Police say Corrigan drew his gun, but those surrounding him stood fast and one cried:

"Drop it or I'll bore you! I've got you covered."

Corrigan threw the gun away, police say, as Smith and Officers Robert DeLodge, Fred Riley and John Manning arrived.

Police held him as a suspicious person and telegraphed Buffalo police for information. One of the addresses in his notebook, according to Sergt. MacFarland, was that of Frederick Smith, ninth floor, State Street Trust Building. Another was on the 10th floor, 84 School st., and three others were in the First National Bank Building.

$100 FINE ON MRS. EMMONS

Mrs Nathaniel Emmons, of Boston and Hingham, pleaded guilty today in Wareham court to driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, drunkenness and operating to endanger, and was fined $100.

She paid the fine on the first charge and the others were placed on file by Judge Nathan Washburn.

Mrs. Emmons made her plea through her attorney, John Vahey.

She was arrested Friday night after phone calls had been flashed along the Cape warning police to be on the lookout for her car.

Police said they had considerable difficulty making the arrest because of two bulldogs in the car, but Mrs. Emmons quieted them.

Police Probe Girl Attack in Cambridge

Cambridge police are investigating a mysterious attack made on Miss Elizabeth M. Sullivan, Dudley st., North Cambridge, as she slept in the front room of her home early today. The man escaped. Miss Sullivan told police she was awakened by the presence of a strange man in a blue suit. Before she could take an outcry he struck her with a bottle.

$100 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Each week $100 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best, two $5 prizes and $2 prizes for each of the 20 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

DOZEN FIREMEN OVERCOME IN BATTLING FLAMES IN ROXBURY

10 FAMILIES DRIVEN TO STREET

Fire in Social Club Ruins Art Collection, Menaces Boston Clerical School

Twelve firemen were overcome by smoke, ten families were driven to the streets and quarters of the Boston clerical school were threatened when fire swept through the historic old quarters of the Prospect Social Club at 216-18 Warren st., Roxbury, early today.

The clubhouse, standing on a 20 foot embankment presented a difficult problem to firemen. A stiff gale blowing at the time carried embers from the burning building for a distance of a quarter of a mile.

Firemen, overcome as they battled flames, were given first aid treatment and all returned to their duties, refusing hospital treatment.

The Boston Clerical school, formerly the old Roxbury High school, was showered with burning embers but hose streams were played on the roof of the structure and it was saved.

When the fire was discovered, policemen roused residents of the adjacent dwellings and ordered them into the street.

The clubhouse which was burned contained many works of art and rare antiques and all these were destroyed.

Twelve Driven Out by Somerville Fire

Twelve persons at 51 Webster st., East Somerville, were driven to the street today when a laundry in the rear of their home caught fire and spread to the dwelling.

The blaze was discovered by Stephen Murphy, 14, who aroused his mother and father and six other children. They were forced out, together with Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Silva and their two-year old baby, who occupy another floor. Chimney sparks were given as the cause of the fire and the loss was set at $200.

Goldstein to Speak at Open Air Meeting

David Goldstein of the Catholic Truth Guild will speak at an open air meeting at Flood sq., South Boston, at 7:45 this evening under the sponsorship of the South Boston, Marquette and Loretto courts, Catholic Daughters of America. Grand Regent Jane Hocknell, Katherine O'Mara and Mary N. Cahill of the courts are in charge of the meeting.

Radio Stolen From Ocean View Club

Thieves took a radio set from the Ocean View Improvement Association rooms at 1198 North Shore rd., Revere, during the night. The break was noticed today by Motorcycle Officer Daniel Sweeney, who saw that a screen had been removed from a rear window.

Record Expected in Tech Enrollment

Another academic year got under way today at Massachusetts Institute of Technology with registration of new and old students. Indications are the enrollment will be larger than that of last year. Late this afternoon the freshman class will hear an address by Karl Taylor Compton, the president of the Institute.

Special Plans for Boston Mail Oct. 7

In order to facilitate dispatch of mail on the day of the Lexington parade, Oct. 7, Postmaster Gow today requested that after 10 a. m. letters be mailed in the main postoffice or at the annexes in the South Station, North Station and Back Bay, or in boxes outside the line of march.

YOUTH HELD IN HURLEY DEATH

Charged with manslaughter in the death of John F. Hurley, brother of Chairman Joseph J. Hurley of the Boston school committee, John J. Gleason, 20, of Lakeview st., Sharon, was held by the grand jury in $20,000 bail today by Judge Hayden in Roxbury court.

Hurley, who was 25 and a junior at Boston College, was fatally injured in a crash of two autos on Massachusetts ave. yesterday. He lived at 65 Dewey st., Dorchester.

Gleason, who first gave his name as John F. McCabe, was also charged with larceny of an automobile, leaving the scene of an accident, operating to endanger and possessing an auto in which there was a revolver. He pleaded not guilty to all.

FIRST OF NEEDY START WORK

The first crew of 35 men were put to work in Malden today as the start of a relief program by Mayor William A. Hastings for unemployed.

A $200,000 program of street construction was mapped out by the mayor with a view to placing hundreds of men at work, and he called for lists from the welfare and soldier relief departments.

The first street under the new prospect will be Cross st., he said, and will include, among others, Faulkner ave. and Pleasant st.

The order for the work, introduced by City Councillor George F. Fingold, provides that the work be given only to citizens of Malden.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Byrd to Lecture Here on Oct. 16

Rear Admiral Richard E Byrd, conqueror of both poles by air, will lecture at Symphony Hall, Thursday evening, October 16, for benefit of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children.

The title of the lecture—the first Admiral Byrd has given since his return from Antarctica—will be "The Flight to the South Pole" and in it the explorer-aviator will tell his own story of the most successful of Antarctic expeditions.

Tickets for the lecture go on public sale at Symphony Hall today.

Officer Tossed Off Car Arrests Driver

Tossed from the running board of an automobile when brakes were suddenly applied in Central ave., Lynn, early today, Patrolman Arthur McDonald arrested the driver for drunken driving.

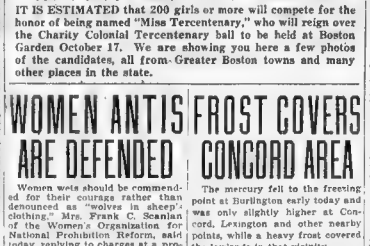
Cost Allen $1820 to Be Renominated

Governor Allen Spent $1820.56 during his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor, according to a return filed with the Secretary of State today. The return also showed he did not receive any money in the interest of his campaign.



Humor Big Asset, Says New England's Typical Girl

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

To be a girl and not have a sense of humor—well, it just isn't normal.

That's the way New England Typical Girl feels about it and she ought to know.

Miss Lucy R. MacDonald, picked as the representative of New England womanhood by a board of five judges in the Boston Evening American's contest, considers a delicious sense of humor" a saving grace and a woman's greatest asset.

It helped her win the title of Typical New England Girl from a group of 300 contestants. That, of course, and her other feminine charms and abilities.

She doesn't smoke, either. Not because she disapproves, she hastily adds, but because the habit is not to her liking.

And she doesn't drink. No, not even a tiny drop. But she does have a good time, what with her horseback riding, her drawing, her sewing, cooking, her school children, who adore her, her host friends, who admire her, her mother, who lives for her.

"A good book, a box of chocolates, a radiant fireside and Lucy and the picture is complete," she laughed.

And sh—

New England's Typical Girl enjoys mystery stories. The spooky kind with hair-raising incidents and thickened plots. Keen mystery stories that tax her ingenuity and keep her on the qui vive.

And then there's the movies. Miss MacDonald never misses a good one if she can help it.

But best of all, there's "Dolly." Miss MacDonald is fond of "Dolly" and enjoys the ride they've had together.

The MacDonald family is a happy one. And all Mattapan is happy for the MacDonald family. But happiest perhaps of all is Mrs. MacDonald, the girl's mother.

"I know Lucy will enjoy this trip to Paris. Every girl would. And it is a happy thought for a mother to know her daughter has been selected to represent all those fine things that you called for in a New England girl."

A healthy companionship exists between this mother and daughter.

Says Lucy: "My mother is the sweetest person in all the world."

Says Mrs. MacDonald: "My Lucy is a sweet girl. She deserves this honor. She'll make those who gave it to her proud of her."

When Miss MacDonald returned to her classroom today, to teach those 5-year-old youngsters, girls and boys, she was swamped with youthful congratulations.

Anxious days now of preparation. Anxious waiting for the bon voyage. Anxious patience until December 12 when Miss Lucy R. MacDonald of 62 Rosewood st., Mattapan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. MacDonald, the choice of three women and two men as New England's Typical Girl sets foot on the Ile de France, all set for Paris and a week of heaven among the treasures of the French capital.

Miss MacDonald will go to Paris as the guest of this newspaper and Miss Gloria Swanson, star of "What a Widow," to be presented soon at Loew's State Theater. All expenses will be paid.

WOMEN ANTIS ARE DEFENDED

Women wets should be commended for their courage rather than denounced as "wolves in sheep's clothing," Mrs. Frank C. Scanlan of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, said today, replying to charges at a prohibition rally in Tremont Temple yesterday.

The charges were made by Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National United Committee for Law Enforcement, who referred to the Women's Prohibition Reform Association as the "Women's Counterfeit Toddy Union."

"Mr. Howard's charge seems to be about as extreme as any statement they make. I don't know how they hope to gain the confidence of the people.

"To call women of the organization to which I belong 'wolves in sheep's clothing,' is so ridiculous. I don't know where you would find a group of people who stand more firmly for the fundamentals of American principles in government and country and rights in the homes.

"It seems a pity this thing had to come up and cause harsh words, because we are all working for true temperance."

Brookline Man Held in Woman's Death

Fred Ford, Brookline city employe and father of two children, will face a charge of murder in municipal court today, police declare, in connection with the mysterious death of Mrs. Dora Franklin of Washington st., South End.

The woman was found beaten to death in her apartment. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, following an autpsy, declared Mrs. Franklin died of injuries as a result of the beating.

FROST COVERS CONCORD AREA

The mercury fell to the freezing point at Hurlington early today and was only slightly higher at Concord, Lexington and other nearby points, while a heavy frost covered the lowlands in that vicinity.

The Boston temperature was in the middle fifties this morning and the weather man, while predicting clear skies and moderate westerly winds, said the cool spell, which was all the more noticeable after last week's extreme warmth, would probably continue.

A sign of coming cold was seen in the flight south of geese.

Sullivan Pleads for Nomination

Alexander F Sullivan of 92 Wadsworth st., East Boston, today filed a petition in Supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel the Boston election commissioners to show cause why he should not be certified for representative to the General Court from Ward 1.

Sullivan contended Henry Salvitalia was declared nominated for the office by seven votes, but that a recount cut down his lead to two votes. He asks the court to order the election commissioners to permit him to examine certain ballots cast in Ward 1.

Key From Ancient Elm for Gen. Hickie

A key to the city, made from wood of the ancient elm that stood on Lexington Green at the time of the Minute Men's fight, was presented today at City Hall by Mayor Curley to Maj.-Gen. Sir William Hickie, a Senator of the Irish Free State. Sir William arrived today from Ireland to be guest of the American Legion. He was accompanied to City Hall by Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, at whose home he is staying.

TERCENTENARY IN BRIGHTON THURSDAY

Banquet to Open Four-Day Observance; Concert and Parade to Feature

Brighton is dressing up her homes and public buildings today in preparation for the official opening on Thursday of her four-day tercentenary celebration.

Her program will be ushered in with a Tercentenary banquet in her new million-dollar high school building on the evening of October 2, when 1000 guests will gather round the festive board.

Herbert Parker, chairman of the Massachusetts Tercentenary commission, will be the honor guest and principal speaker.

Brighton talent will stage a concert and pantomime and a military drill at the high school auditorium on Friday evening, the date set also by Headmaster Rich for public inspection of the building.

Saturday will be the great day for the children of the district when they hold a toy parade in colonial costumes with prizes and ice cream afterward. They parade at 10:30 o'clock.

The big Tercentenary parade will march in four divisions from Oak sq. via Washington st. Saturday afternoon. A military mounted drill and patriotic exercises are scheduled to follow.

The exercises close Sunday afternoon with a band concert in Oak Sq. Park.

State Police Try to Keep Boston Dry for Legion Week

State police took steps today to block expected attempts to flood Boston with liquor for the national convention of the American Legion next week.

Orders were dispatched to all troops on Cape Cod by Lieut. Edward Gully of the Middleboro barracks to organize night patrols to watch the shore and all roads.

Heretofore all patrolling has stopped at 6 o'clock but the understood additional men will be assigned to the Cape district for the additional duty entailed by the new orders.

GOV. ALLEN PROMISES BASES FOR ALL UNITS OF NATIONAL GUARD

LAUDS WORK OF CITIZEN SOLDIERS

Declares for Preparedness in Welcoming Guard Association to Boston

Governor Allen, welcoming delegates to the convention of the National Guard Association of the United States at Faneuil Hall today, emphatically declared himself for preparedness.

He further declared that if elected to office again all National Guard units of the State which have not been housed, will be given houses.

"Where would we have been during the dark days of the last war if it had not been for the National Guard, which was the nucleus of our forces?" he asked.

APPLAUD ALLEN

The Governor's remarks were greeted with much applause by the delegates, who came from all parts of the country to the convention.

They were replied to by Brig.-Gen. Robert Jesse Travis of Georgia, who stressed the importance of National Guards at the present time.

"There is no doubt of unrest in the States and tension in European countries today," he said.

Maj.-Gen. Alfred F. Foote, commanding the 26th Division, as president of the association called the convention to order.

An invocation was delivered by the Rev. Michael J. O'Connor, chaplain of the Yankee Division.

Gen. Walter E. Lombard, retired, extended a welcome in behalf of the National Guard Association of Massachusetts, and a response was made by Brig.-Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, adjutant-general of Minnesota.

The convention will remain in session through October 1.

CURLEY, FRIEND OF VETS

Mayor Curley was introduced as a friend of the veterans by Gen. Foote, and expressed his pleasure at being present.

"I am glad," he said, "that there are still men in this country who place love of country above every other consideration."

He then presented the delegates with a key of the city made from wood of the famous Washington elm.

A response was made by Brig. Gen. Charles E. McPherren, of Oklahoma, after which lunch was served in the Annexes' armory upstairs. In the afternoon delegates with their wives visited points of historic interest.

21 Planes Fly Here to National Guard Meet

Fliers in 21 National Guard planes from as far south as Montgomery, Ala., and as far west as Detroit, arrived at Boston Airport today to attend the National Guard convention being held here.

The ships, flying in formation, were led by Capt. Clarence Hodge of the Massachusetts National Guard from Hartford, Ct., where they assembled yesterday.

The 106th observation squadron, Montgomery, Ala., sent three ships in command of Lieut.-Col. U. N. James.

The 37th Division, 112th observation squadron, Ohio, sent a detail commanded by Maj. T. J. Herbert. From Indianapolis came a ship of the 113th observation squadron commanded by Lieut.-Col. Paul Fechterman with Maj. R. F. Taylor at the controls.

The 32d observation squadron, Detroit, sent two ships in command of Capt. H. G. Menschi, piloted by Capt. F. R. Anderson and Capt. Howard Emhoff.

Baltimore sent four planes, commanded by Maj. T. J. McNicholas. The 43d observation squadron, Connecticut, sent two planes in command of Maj. H. E. Johnson. Capt. Williamson of the 154th observation squadron, Little Rock, Ark., arrived yesterday.

Later three ships of the 119th squadron, in command of Maj. Kellogg Sloan, arrived from Newark, N. J. They were followed in the airport by a plane from St. Paul, Minn., in command of Maj. Harry Miller, with Sergt. George Tilden piloting.

STREET SAGS; IS ROPED OFF

Fearing a possible cavein of the roadway in Devonshire st., adjoining the excavations being made on the old Postoffice site, police today roped off the danger area.

It may be necessary to close that portion of the street to travel, according to official. The roadway has sagged on one side from auto and trucks passing over it and needs considerable propping to make it safe. Whether this sagging has weakened water, electric and telephone pipes is a question city inspectors were trying to solve.

With establishment of the "dead line" and the crowding of cars to the center and side of the street in the affected area, there were continual traffic jams.

Police were kept busy re-routing cars and untangling congestion of trucks and other vehicles at Water and Devonshire and Milk and Devonshire sts.

Sun Spoils Rum Raid Made on Daylight Saving Time

Prohibition agents made a mistake when they entered the premises of Edward D. Carberry at 57 Sagamore rd., Worcester, on a daylight saving time warrant and seized 2100 bottles of beer, according to a ruling by United States Commissioner Jenney in Federal Court today, in discharging Carberry.

Carberry was before the court on a continuance on a charge of possessing liquor. His counsel raised the point that the warrant was served on Carberry at 7.25 p. m. on Sept. 8, 13 minutes after the sun had set that day.

The question of the disposition of the bottled beer served on that occasion will be determined later.

MINISTER'S SON DIES IN FIRE

The crying of a two-year-old Roxbury boy for milk cost him his life early today at an automobile camp in Foxboro.

Little Robert Riddle, son of the Rev. Albert Lawrence Riddle of 38 Phillips st., Roxbury, was burned to death in the family auto van, while the missionary and his wife were saving four other children.

The family were on their way from Roxbury to Albany, N. Y., and had stopped at the camp for the night.

When Robert awoke and cried for his bottle, the minister arose and started to heat the bottle on a portable gasoline stove. When he struck a match, the stove exploded.

The Rev. Riddle and his wife saved the other four children, each believing the other had brought out Robert.

Mrs. Riddle collapsed and today is under a doctor's care at the home of friends in Mansfield.

Rev. Riddle is associated with the American Rescue League Mission.

Man Who Dived in River Held in $2000

William Williamson of Belvidere st., Back Bay, who was arrested in the Charles river Saturday night after he had jumped from Harvard bridge following an auto crash, was arraigned for drunkenness in Roxbury court today and held in $2000 bail for hearing Friday. As yet no other charges have been placed against him. He pleaded not guilty. Metropolitan police fished him from the river.

Coffee House Thief Gets Six Months

Found guilty of stealing $27 from his employer, Edward Scanlon, 32 of Howdoin st., was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Duff in Municipal court today. Scanlon went to work for Edwin A. Adams, proprietor of a Tremont st. coffee house, last May 25. Adams, leaving for the week-end, returned to find the strong box rifled.

Woman Has $21,141 Claim on Showboat

Claim for $21,141 against Showboat, the amusement enterprise conducted this summer at a Northern ave. pier, was filed in Federal Court today by Alice P. Childs of Waltham. She bases her claim on material and services she declares she provided, and requests it be satisfied out of proceeds if the vessel is sold. The Pier Machine Co. filed an action against Showboat several weeks ago, asking that it be sold to satisfy a claim.

Coat Thief Guilty; Woman Pal Freed

Howard Curley, 27, of West 102d st., New York, arrested after a chase through West Somerville, was given a three months' suspended sentence in Somerville Court today on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny of a leather coat, valued at $18. His woman companion, Doris Leal, was discharged. The coat was stolen from the home of Elzer Greening at 17 Garrison ave., West Somerville.

Hunting Season May Wait Till Rain Comes

Unless it rains heavily within a few days Governor Allen will probably be requested to order the woods closed and postpone the opening of the hunting season William A. L. Baseley, commissioner of conservation, announced today. The danger from forest fires by careless use of smoking materials or neglect of campfires is now greater than ever as the leaves have begun to fall.

Baldwin Withdraws Protest on Whipple

Objection to an alleged violation of the one year's inhabitancy requirement of a candidate in his district, filed by Rep. William A. Baldwin to the Republican nomination of Frank L. Whipple in the 11th Essex district was withdrawn today. Rep. Baldwin intimated he would again take the matter up before the next House of Representatives.

HUNDREDS VISIT STATE EXHIBIT

Hundreds visited Mechanics building today for the opening of the Tercentenary Industrial Exposition, under the auspices of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts. The advance of manufacturing in this state during three centuries is depicted.

The exposition will continue through Saturday, October 11. More than 100 concerns have exhibits of interest to the general public.

Primitive machines are contrasted with modern machinery in a number of exhibits, while many exhibitors are showing the actual processes of manufacture.

The great diversity of industries in Massachusetts is shown by the fact that more than 100 distinct fields of manufacture are represented, ranging from envelopes to automobiles and from confectionery to textile machinery. The jewelry exhibition is one of the most attractive. This is centered in Paul Revere Hall, where the world famous manufacturers of the Attleboro district have booths.

METAL LUNG IS SAVING LIVES OF FIVE

New Device Is Feeding Air to Paralysis Sufferers in Boston Hospital

Science was winning today a grim battle with death at Massachusetts General Hospital where five infantile paralysis sufferers are being treated with the new "metal lung," the Drinker respirator.

Rushed from Waltham Hospital to the Boston institution James L. Breen, 13, of 18 Dwight st., Waltham whose condition is the most critical of the five, showed improvement today, it was reported at the hospital.

The boy's chest muscles, necessary for normal respiration, are "frozen" in paralysis, but so effective an aid has the Drinker apparatus been that today he was experiencing period intervals of free breathing without use of the respirator.

The boy's condition today was good, and if his improvement continues at the rate since last Saturday, he has an even chance for recovery, according to hospital attaches.

Meanwhile a second respirator is in use at the institution in taking care of four other patients.

In these cases, which are not as advanced as that of young Breen, the Drinker apparatus is being utilized principally to prevent spread of the disease to the lungs, rather than as an emergency relief for breathing.

Young Wife Happy Now

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker, R. R. #1, Wheatland, Indiana.

Aunt Bella Will Gladly Answer Almost Any Questions of General Interest, Except Those About What Time It Is.

Dear Aunt Bella—Just what is the correct form in introducing a gentleman to a distinguished lady.
—One Present.

Ans.—Aunt Bella, I might say by way of introduction, has never been what you might call squeamish about the way in which she is tipped off to a gentleman. There's so few guys around that ain't mugs, that it's carrying things a little too far to care about how they get to know you. So my advice to you is just bring the guy around. How Inks Were Made

The ancient black inks were composed of soot and ivory black, and Vitruvius and Pliny mention lamb black. They also had ink of various colors, as red, gold, silver and purple. Red ink is made of vermilion and gum.

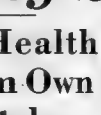
Only Sensible Living Can Free Us of Aches and Pains

Ill Health From Own Mistakes

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

WHEN WE learn to observe the sensible rules of hygienic living, then, and not until then, may we expect to be free from aches and pains. Most of our uncomfortable symptoms come from our own mistakes.



Dr. Copeland

One of the most common of human ailments is sore throat. It may occur in the middle of the summer, or in the coldest months. There are a large number of persons who invariably place the blame for this trouble on bad weather conditions. Nine times out of ten, careful study of the case will show some violation of the rules of hygiene.

Worry, overtiredness from overwork or any other cause, lack of sleep, all cause a lowering of the body's resistance to infection. When in such a condition of decreased vitality, it is perfectly natural to chill easily. This is what happens if the day is damp and cold or in summer if one is suddenly exposed to a draft when overheated.

Too many persons abuse the stomach with too rich food and too much food. This results in a bodily state which prepares for the condition known as a "cold." Sore throat makes its appearance.

Under the ordinary conditions of good health, the liver does its work effectively. But it cannot do the impossible thing. Sometimes, when the poisons have accumulated in too large quantities, they escape into the general blood stream and are carried to other parts of the body.

Given such a condition, if a person were to talk for too long a time, so that the throat muscles were overtaxed, or if a man had smoked too much, the throat would become irritated and congested. It is then that bacteria get in their work. If they lodge in that region the victim would have a sore throat probably.

When you have a sore throat the set thing to do is to get rid of he bowel accumulation. This can e done with the help of enemas or edication.

Restrict the diet for a day or two until your digestive apparatus has time to recuperate. Get plenty of sleep and rest so as to build up your resisting power against further poisoning of the system.

If a chill should occur with the old, take a hot drink and a hot bath, so as to overcome the congestion of the parts. Keep covered warmly in bed and allow nature to do the rest. Your doctor will prescribe a simple remedy to assist.

"Fill-in" Furniture

—Directed by AMOS PARRISH—

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Is there an empty spot—a hole—in your living room?

That's a question lots of folks are asking themselves right now. Folks who want to "do something" to their living room to give it a new, different look—but who don't want to refurnish entirely.

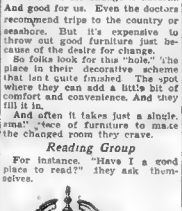
The desire for change is natural. And good for us. Even the doctors recommend trips to the country or seashore. But it's expensive to throw out good furniture just because of the desire for change.

So folks look for this "hole," the place in their decorative scheme that isn't quite finished. The spot where they can add a little bit of comfort and convenience. And they fill it in.

And often it takes just a single, small piece of furniture to make the changed room they crave.

Reading Group

For instance. "Have I a good place to read?" they ask themselves.



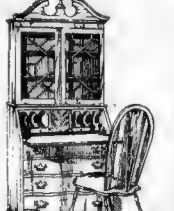
Reading Group

"Have I a place to tuck away odds and ends?" The packs of cards, card table covers, pencils, an extra needle and spool of thread. Something that has drawer space for lots of things.

Small Tables

Maybe it's only a footstool they need to fill up the hole. Or a coffee table to set by the sofa. Or a book table to hold the overflow from the book shelves.

It's surprising what new interest and comfort you can put in a room when you find something about it . . . with just these small objects—or others.



Writing Group

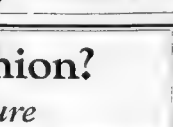
The popular type of secretary

Tomorrow: What rugs with what furniture? Amos Parrish tells you.

Of course they have a comfortable chair. But has it a table beside it to hold the ash tray and the candy box? With a lamp on the table for better light? Or one on the floor in the right spot behind or beside the chair?

"Have I a real place to write letters and keep my household accounts?" Or are they still doing it on the dining room table?

Reading Group



Practical Chest

illustrated at the lower left takes care of the writing problem . . . and book problem, too. Plenty of room here for all kinds of writing materials and account ledgers. And you find them priced anywhere from $25 up to as high as you want to pay!

With a simple Windsor chair, as is shown in the sketch, it makes an interesting group that adds much to the decorative value of your room.

And see how easy it is to make a reading group, starting with a comfortable chair. Just be sure your small table and lamp are in harmony with the type of chair . . . as they are in the illustration at the center.

The chest of drawers sketched at the upper right is fine for either living room or bedroom. Or a variance in the bedroom can be easily filled with one of the popular chaises longue or a comfortable boudoir chair.

There are lots of ways to give your room new interest this fall. To make it a place you like to be in. A place the whole family likes to be in . . . and bring their friends to visit.

Infatuation Confused With Love

By HELEN ROWLAND.

How long, O my Daughter, will thou continue to confuse Infatuation with True Love, and to hearken unto men's "Oh-promise-me's?"

For the one is unto the other as star-dust, which dazzleth the eyes, unto starlight, which cleareth the vision and maketh all things radiant.

And by these signs shall thou know them.

Lo, love cometh with reverence and burnt offerings, as a knight on bended knee: but infatuation cometh as a caveman with a club.

Love saith, "Love me—or I will make THEE suffer!"

Love is the homing instinct of the heart—infatuation is the hunting instinct of the imagination and the curiosity.

Love saith hopefully, "I'll win thee!" Infatuation saith boastfully, "I'll GET thee!"

Love seeth with the mind and glorifieth the Beloved: Infatuation seeth with the eyes, through rose-colored glasses, dimly.

Love saith, "Thou hast conquered me!" Infatuation saith, "I will conquer THEE!"

Love kindleth the aspiration: infatuation wreckeeth the appetite, the sleep, the ambition—and sometimes the purse and the conscience.

Infatuation saith, "I love thee, NOW!" Love saith, "I will love thee tomorrow—and tomorrow—and tomorrow—forever!"

Love trusteth, believeth and forgiveth: infatuation feareth doubteth, suspecteth—and naggeth.

Love sacrificeth all things; infatuation demandeth all things!

Verily, verily infatuation is a temporary state of being "in love" but love is the extreme sentence—and, once in, thou art "in for life!"

Therefore do the gods smile upon love. But when they behold infatuation they know not whether to weep or to laugh loudly.

For the beginning thereof is glamour and headlines; but the end is apathy and weariness and ennui and dead sea fruit.

Madly in Love, Wants to Tell Him of It

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:35 p. m., over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl and am madly in love with a man two years my senior. However, he has never asked me out or shown that he was very attentive and pays no more attention to me whenever we are together. Do you think I should make it more obvious to him that I care for him a great deal?

Beatrice Fairfax

I do not want him to get the impression that I am chasing him, for I know that boys generally go out for the things they want and not for those that come to them.

Please, Miss Fairfax, can you tell me how I can win his affections?

"BABETTE."

Dear Babette: Don't be so impatient. Give the boy time to make up his mind. You can't tell him in so many words that you love him but you can make yourself attractive by dressing nicely, always being friendly and sympathetic and not too insistent upon intruding your own affairs.

All a girl has to do is be a good listener and ask a leading question once in a while and she rouses only an ideal of the brilliant conversationalist.

Dangerous Attitude

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I must compliment you on your wonderful columns. Does just mothers or others seek your advice. Why is it just love-sick girls write to you? Men very seldom do, but when they do they are much more brains than women. Can't your column consist of more interesting things than foolish girls who can't live without him," or "I would like to know how I can win him back." "I can't bear to lose him!" and all that sort of trash. Seems to me that some girls can't seem to have any pride, that is, girls from 14 to 20 years of age. When a fellow neglects one girl for another it's time to put on the brakes and shift to someone else. Because men are more or less like automobiles. If you can't run one, then you have no business to hold one. If girls would only wake up and be a less disgrace to the female sex, then the men would sit up and take notice. The more girls give in to men first the more conceited the men will get. All of that of courses means more of that foolish train of heart-breaking girls. Hearts really don't break only unless your own fleas and blood is concerned. When men get a tough break with a girl they hardly ever go whining around as to how to win them back. They just go about getting themselves another one. So, girls wake up and don't moan for one man. They're not worth it.

M. H. A.

Dear M. H. A.—The reason I print nothing but love letters in the column is because it is essentially a column giving advice on affairs of the heart. Other people's love affairs always seem silly, especially if they are not the particularly sympathetic or understanding. I think you have a rather dangerous attitude of sophistry which would make it difficult for you to sympathize with any one else's problem anyway. Girls will continue to have their hearts "broken" and men will continue to be mysteries to the average girl. As you say, most of the letters are from young folks from 14 to 20 years of age, and naturally the most absorbing topic in the whole world interests them more than anything else, and it is my duty and privilege to try to clear a few little puzzling matters up for them.

Get a Good Start

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am interested in your letters in the Boston Evening American and I hope you can help me as you have helped many others.

I am a boy 18 years of age and am very much in love with a girl 16 years of age. Both of our parents are dead and we are now staying at her aunts. I would like to marry this girl, but she thinks that she should wait five years, until she is of age. I can wait that long for her, but I do not think it is necessary. Do you think I am right?

I have a good position and can support her. Her aunt is in favor of our marriage, as she herself married at the same age and has never regretted it. It is a "fad" in both our families to marry young. I hope you can help me and I thank you for any advice you can give.

UNDECIDED HAROLD.

Dear Harold: There is no reason why you shouldn't marry, with your uncle's consent. You are a little young, according to modern standards, which are mostly enforced and artificial. We must remember that before economics entered into the picture to force boys and girls to wait until the pay envelope justified marriage, grandmother and grandfather married much younger than we of today.

Asks If Gifts Can Cause Bad Luck

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1. I have heard that when you give a young man friend a handkerchief for a gift, it breaks friendship. Could that ever be true.

2. When two girls are walking with a boy where should he walk, between the girls or just at one side?

3. When a boy gives a girl a present for her birthday, is it proper for her to give him a gift on his birthday?

J. T.

1. No, not possibly. Such a simple gift and one in such good taste should not be maligned in this way. It is one of the classic gifts —quite harmless, quite correct, and I am sure, quite lucky! When the handkerchief is in good taste —and taste is blatantly revealed in the selection, it ought to cement a friendship, not break it. I think that the person who told you this must mean a handkerchief that isn't good-looking.

2. He should walk on the side of the pavement nearest the curb.

3. It is proper for her to give him a present, if she gives him a present that shows her good taste and discrimination. And she should give it to him because she wishes to give it, not because he gave her a present.

The Etiquette of Distinct Articulation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you settle an argument, please? A maintains that pronunciation is included in the world of etiquette; B insists that it is not. And you—what do you say?

A MAN

A wins sir. It is good manners to articulate distinctly and it is bad manners not to. Not to speak distinctly is unkind and often irritating to the person spoken to—and that means a disregard of others, which is bad manners.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Chester Arrives With the Police at Scene of Mysterious Death

CHAPTER 34

MARGUERITE OPENED the door a moment, to listen. The noise, whatever it was downstairs, had stopped.

She sighed with relief, and closed and bolted the door again. Just as she was closing the door Cathie heard the Westminster chimes on the second floor, striking two. It made her think of the nursery rhyme about the grandfather clock that never ran any more, after the old man died. . . . But Mr. Farnsworth's clock was running right along. . . .

Marguerite sat back on her heels, shook the dangling red hair out of her eyes.

"I can't do it," she said hopelessly. "I'm just making it worse. You'll have to take it off . . . give it to me . . . the nightgown too . . . lift up your arms . . . I'll slip it off . . . here!" She flung a red woolen robe about Cathie's shoulders, and began pulling open bureau drawers, searching frantically for something. There! She had it. A white crepe nightgown, heavily trimmed with real Valenciennes lace. . . . "Put that on. It's handsome enough. Nobody would ever know but what it was your own—"

"It smells of perfume," Cathie objected weakly, "That perfume I don't like—"

Household Astir

For a minute Cathie thought that Marguerite was going to slap her. Then she dropped her hand, and said gently, "Don't! Oh, don't bring up things like that, at a time like this when . . . when . . ."

Noises downstairs. The whole house was awake now. Chinese voices calling to each other shrilly. Pattering feet.

"Come!" Marguerite commanded.

She began pushing Cathie toward the door. "Where's your other slipper?"

Cathie looked down. Saw for the first time that one foot was bare. One turquoise slipper was gone.

"Oh, my God. No, don't wait. Come, never mind the slipper!"

They heard running up the uncarpeted stairs. A slim young Chinaman, his face impassive and, "Cheong said tell you we find boss. Telephone morgue wagon. Too late for doctor now, he say."

Cathie opened her mouth to speak, but no words came. She heard herself sinking, sinking.

Once the thought she heard someone say, "She's fainted," but she didn't know whether they were talking about her, or somebody else. She was sinking into blackness, into oblivion, where words could not come.

Marguerite's knees gave under her. She said, "now I'm going to faint too . . . and her clothes still on the floor . . ."

The young Chinese boy had caught Catherine as she crumpled and would have fallen. He stood, tottering against Cathie's dead weight, staring at the larger woman, uncertain of just what to do.

Marguerite closed her eyes When she opened them again the old Chinaman, Cheong, was there. Without a word he took Cathie from the boy, hoisted her in his arms, and carried her to her room. Marguerite watched for a moment. Then she slipped back into her room, and hid the blood-stained garments deep in the bottom of an old trunk. Locked it, pocketed the key.

Chester Arrives

"Hold your own tongue!" she snapped back.

She saw him smilingly slightly, as he waddled on downstairs, a grossly fat Chinaman, in a black silk coat.

That smile had a strange effect on Marguerite. It sickened her. Several moments passed before she could pull herself together enough to go to Catherine. She said in a wheedling voice, "Mrs. Farnsworth, darling, you won't be keeping all the servants now, will you? . . . They'll leave now—the Chinese —now that the old one is dead." Cheong will go away, won't he?"

"I don't know," Cathie said, dully.

They sat in silence, Cathie huddled under the satin quilt, her teeth chattering, her whole body shaking uncontrollably, the maid watching her, stupidity and cunning and despair written on her pallid, haggard face.

Downstairs doors were banging, babble of many voices. "My God, the police!" Marguerite began to rock back and forth in misery.

Cathie listened. "It's Chester! Oh, why did they send for him? I said to call the police, and they've gone and sent for Chester—"

"No, they didn't. He just came all by himself. Wait—I'll tell him you don't see him. You stay right here. Mrs. Farnsworth—I'll get rid of him!"

Cathie closed her eyes. The thought of Chester was just too much. She lay back on the pillow, but the chattering, the argument, the scuttling of feet worried her. She sat up again, and her glance fell on the blue mule near her bed . . . the other one, where was it? In that room . . . that room . . .

In a flash she was out of bed, racing barefooted down the hall.

Someone had run up the shades. The moon was gone but the first gray light of morning lay in the room, on the white counterpane of the bed, on the gray face of the dead man, on a bowl of white roses on the bedside table near him.

The flowers hadn't been there before . . . funny . . . China lilies, beautiful double ones with thick pale stems, and golden hearts . . . someone must have brought them . . . but when? Oh, well, it didn't matter. . . .

All Fear Gone

Cathie went over and stood by the side of the bed, where her husband lay, cold and dead. He looked so miserable, so all alone, with his grey face, and the limp hand still dangling. She wanted to go back to her room, since her slipper didn't seem to be there, but she hated to go. . . . It seemed unkind to go off that way, to be afraid of Mr. Farnsworth, who had always been so kind. . . . "I'll stay with you," she whispered, "Don't be afraid, dear, I'll stay. . . . I'd have stayed with you always . . . do you know that? Can you hear me telling you now? It's true. Don't you believe me?"

She thought he heard her, that he understood. . . .

She knelt by the bedside comforted. All the horror, all the fear of death was gone.

"I wish I'd told him about Gordon . . . about always loving him," she thought. "He'd have understood. I wish I'd been nicer to him . . . there were things that I could have done that I didn't. He was always so good to me. I wish I had it to do over. . . ."

She began to cry softly and naturally.

Twenty minutes later Chester Farnsworth and two police inspectors found her, still kneeling by the bed.

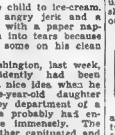
THE CHILD HAS ITS SORROWS That Should Be Avoided

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

YOU AND I have heard people say, "Childhood is such a happy time," yet if we keep our eyes and ears open with a group of children for a day we will soon realize — and probably with a shock — that childhood isn't particularly a happy time. And as another shock, if we are honest with ourselves, we may realize that it MIGHT be if only we grown people were a little kinder.



Constance Cameron

We treat the child like a cream-puff when with an angry jerk and a furious wiping with a paper napkin throw him into tears because she has spilled some on his clean suit.

Over in Washington, last week, a father [illegible] was fined and then prompted by a nice idea when he took his five-year-old daughter through the toy department of a big store. She probably had enjoyed the time immensely. The father had further capitulated and bought her a mouth organ with two little handles to turn which ground out music. We, a group of us, were waiting for an elevator to take us downstairs. It was a long wait, and little daughter, eyes sparkling with happiness, put the mouth-organ to her lips and experimented with it tentatively.

The father frowned. "Wait until we get into the car," was his first order. Little daughter obediently withdrew the magic object from her mouth but in spite of herself it crept back again and a few notes tinkled out. It bothered no one but the father. We all watched her joy turn with amazing interest.

"Stop It!" The father grabbed her arm and walked her away from the elevator scolding her soundly as he did so. The little girl broke into bitter tears. What had she done that was so wrong? Given a coveted toy the natural thing was to USE it.

If we intend to make children happy, let's go ALL the way, or not go at all. This allowing children to taste a pleasure and then either ordering it from them or scolding them for consequent accidents or smears accruing from its use, is a brutal thing. Children shouldn't be made to cry through our thoughtfulness.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

STOUT STOCKINGS can produce all kinds of foot tortures. corns and ingrowing nails. They are almost as much of a menace as shoes that are too small. Stockings should be changed daily. There should be a frequent change of shoes, especially in warm weather. Little dogs that carry us around all day long are entitled to attention, if they don't get it, they let us know. And hurty feet don't make for pretty faces.

Bath salts and sweet perfumes are delightful luxuries. A woman has a feeling of splendor when she touches her ear lobes with a delicate odor or dabs a bit of precious stuff into a handkerchief. But better by far to buy one ounce of a delicate flower fragrance than to invest in a heavily scented bottle that knocks the passerby in the nose.

Instead of taking sleeping medicine, take a warm bath, settle down with a dull, drowsy book and clear the mind of worry. Loss of sleep does no great harm unless the sleepless one gets in a nervous fret about it. The more fretting, the farther away sleep will be.

Peroxide, combined with powdered pumice stone, will form a paste that can be used with the orange-wood stick to lift the tight cuticle away from the nail base. The mixture is also an excellent cleansing agent to be shoved under the nail says when grime has lodged there and refuses to get out.

Listen, World! Great to Live Dramatically

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE GREAT thing is to live dramatically.

Elsie Robinson

Most of our misery and crime
Is caused by our rebellion Against that
Which is.
No matter how stupid we may be,
Nor how insensible to beauty,
We realize that there is
Glory about us, and tumult, and adventure,
And we long to be part of it.
So we rebel . . . and usually ravel out
In self-pity and resentment.

Human spirits need drama and excitement
For their proper growth
As much as trees need winds and storms.
We would all be infinitely more splendid,
Generous, happy and resourceful,
If we could live life dramatically.

It is not necessary to have unusual luck
To live life dramatically.
Nor is it even necessary to
Do spectacular things—
It only necessary to take the chances
With yourself and your environment
Which life offers to every man.
If you can once get that attitude
Toward your existence,
You will find charm and tang and thrill
In even the commonest experience.

Life is dull because we make it dull—
Because we have not the courage to risk danger
Or sass Destiny
Life is endless because we prefer
The safety of gray to the audacity of scarlet,
And then peeve because, while living gray,
We can't feel scarlet.
As a matter of fact,
Out of us live at all,
We merely exist through a long series
Of cowardly compromises and evasions.
God did not design men
To live like sour bugs.
Huddled in the darkness
Beneath a rotting log
If that had been His intent
He would have made only sour bugs.
God needs Lindberghs and Lincolns,
Joan of Arcs and Florence Nightingales,
God needs spirits who will reflect
His own abundance and His own recklessness,
Who will gamble with Him
On this mysterious job of creation—
Spirits who are willing to live wider,
Even if they die a little sooner.
God does not condemn men to mediocrity,
Men condemn themselves
By their own cowardice,
Their laziness and vanity and greed
Live dramatically!
Live expectantly and enthusiastically!
Do not regard each new dawn
As one more tiresome demand
To get up and brush your teeth—
Greet each day as a challenge!
Enter each day as though you were setting out
To seek for buried treasure.
The treasure is there if you will look for it.
The treasure is there in the common things
Which you have always done.
It was the way you did them,
Not the things themselves
Which made them dull.
And given each dawn impudently
And imprudently,
Ready to take any risk which may come,
Don't stop, look and listen.
Clutching at your petty comforts and self-pity
While life launders by on the rails.
Take a chance with life,
Thunder with it!
Live differently!
Live dangerously!
LIVE!

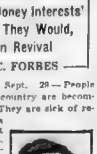
PUBLIC LOSE FAITH IN OUR BIG LEADERS

Are Sure 'Money Interests' Could, If They Would, Hasten Revival

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 29—People throughout the country are becoming very sore. They are sick of repeated attacks on stock market values by bears. They are incensed over short selling of wheat, whether by the Russian government or by home speculators. In agricultural states indignation rules because of the tragically low prices for most farm products. Bitter complaint is made that "America is utterly without leader ship." Ordinary folks can't understand why the powers that be sit idly by and let destructionists wreck values. Intense dissatisfaction is expressed, not only by unemployed, not only by farmers, but by all classes.



B. C. Forbes

The notion widely prevails that everything could be changed were "the money interests" anxious to have things changed. Some even hint that certain of our most powerful corporations are perfectly willing to see things go as they have been going in order to wipe out weak competitors and thus cut down over production.

The "money interests" might or might not be able to accomplish miracles were they to try earnestly. The naked truth is that the pessimism has been as rampant in the highest financial circles as elsewhere. Retrenchment has been as drastic at the top as at the bottom.

This country has prided itself on the courage and daring and enterprise and Napoleonic achievements of its leaders. We have gloried in attaining world supremacy in wealth, in invention, in industry, etc.

Today not courage but fear rules. The biggest are just as timid as the pitifully. Nobody looks up; everybody is looking down.

Never before have so many complaining letters deluged this column. Our leaders have sunk self, in the estimation of the public. Now our billion-dollar corporations risen in favor.

It behooves high-ups to begin themselves and do something with at self-sacrifice of immediate profit, to do all within their power to bring about less discontent, less pessimism, less depression, less unemployment

The new governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, Eugene Meyer, has lost no time in calling together heavyweights interested in our national agricultural problems. Last time I talked with him—just before he went to Washington—he was very eager to find ways and means to utilize the resources and influence of the Reserve Board, to check the decline in cotton and grain price and to create a less hopeless state of mind concerning our most important industry, agriculture. Fortunately, he has had vast experience, more experience than any other man in America, in handling financial assista.ce to agriculture

It may be that Mr. Legge and he will be able to accomplish more than heretofore has seemed possible.

POWER PLANT OPENING TO BE BIG EVENT

By FRANK H. MELDON

Dedication of the new power plant of the New England Power Assn. at Fifteen Mile Falls on the upper Connecticut River at 10 a. m. tomorrow will be one of the outstanding events of the current week. The New England Power Assn., of which Frank D. Comerford is president, is a subsidiary of the International Hydro-Electric System.

Frank D. Comerford (Comerford photo by Ward

President Hoover, who noted the possibilities at Fifteen Mile Falls when visiting New England before the work was definitely envisioned by the founders of the completing company, will turn a golden key at the White House. This will start operation of the largest hydro-electric plant to be started in the United States this year.

The energy supplied by the President's index finger will travel over a special 200-mile circuit to the upper Connecticut River midway between St. Johnsbury, Vermont, and Littleton, N. H., where the mammoth development has just been completed.

The main dam rises 175 feet above the bed of the river. On the Vermont side is the spillway, 85 feet long and varying in height from 20 to 85 feet. This is due to the main part of the dam, on top of which is one of the biggest transformer banks in that section of the country and the lofty towers from which wires pass to the outdoor switching station on the New Hampshire hillside.

At this station the electrical energy which will be generated at 13,800 volts will be stepped up to 66,000 volts for local distribution and to 220,000 volts for transmission over the 126-mile double circuit steel tower line which runs to another new switching station at Tewksbury in the Bay State

New England visitors to Quebec and its historic shrines will miss the picturesque dogs and hoop carts which formerly lined the main highway leading eastward from the walled City of Quebec. All agree with the Roads Department that the presence of the canines and their owners has not been favored by tourists or that unfavorable have been stopped or annoyed by the well-trained animals and their child owners.

New England cities which retain customs of the old times and reminders of days when the great nation was young do not find they annoy tourists. Portsmouth, N. H., for example, proudly retains one of the old flagstone sidewalks of the 18th century. Tourists might be annoyed by finding them always walking, but have never made complaints, while thousands have expressed their interest and appreciation. Even curfew ringing has not been wholly abandoned in New England. Summer visitors who bring many thousands of dollars to communities where the custom is retained would object to its abolition. Numerous other illustrative cases might be cited

American States Earnings Larger

In the 12 months ended July 31 profits of American States Public Service Co. available for interest, reserves and federal taxes amounted to $921,061, a gain of 10.3 per cent over profits of $834,794 on the same basis in the preceding year. Gross revenue for the period amounted to $1,745,946, against $1,685,961 in the preceding year.

For the month of August, American States reported a profit of $104,196 on the above basis, compared with $90,844 a year ago. August gross revenue totaled $177,041, compared with $174,938 in the same period last year.

Base Metals Off in London Market

London, Sept. 29 AP)—Base metals slumped on the Metal Exchange today, attributed largely to liquidation on the New York account. Copper fell 23 shillings per ton to £48, 8 shillings and 9 pence, lowest since 1896. Tin dropped 4 pounds per ton to £128, the lowest since 1914 and zinc fell 8 shillings per ton to £13, 1 shilling and 3 pence, the lowest since 1896

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Another "test week" for the stock market is under way, the market letter writers say. Others, who stop to think, as if it isn't always a "test week" in Wall St.

Economists writing about the "bear market" are often surprised when, following suggestions, they study the 1930 course of bonds and preferred stocks.

As to the recent fluctuations of the stock market, well-trained observers declare there is something very artificial about them. It is feared that they will occur intermittently until some degree of stability is restored to various situations now being "played up" by speculative rings.

More Advertising Volume Is Ahead

Newspaper advertising agencies of H. K. McCann and the Erickson Co. have combined into McCann-Erickson, Inc. Corporation in volume of advertising handled will rank among the first five or six in the country. President McCann of the new company states that appropriations for the first six months of 1931 for newspaper advertising show a definite increase over the same clients' commitments for the last six months of this year

Baldwin Shipments Well Maintained

Baldwin Locomotive shipments in September will approximate $3,000,000, or not much different from August output of $3,160,000. Manufacturing operations are being maintained at a steady uniform rate, and schedules provide for shipments of also about $3,000,000 in October. Although the company began September with unfilled orders sufficient to maintain shipments at $3,000,000 a month the balance of 1930, it is possible operations might taper off the last two months of the year

Shipments for six months were $17,400,000 and it is probable that shipments for the car will approximate between $32,000,000 and $33,000,000, against $25,000000 in 1929.

Inventories Are Reduced 10 P. C.

Analysis of balance sheets for June 30 of almost 100 leading industrial corporations shows in preceding 12 months cash and security holdings declined only about 2 per cent, in spite of business depression, while inventories were reduced approximately 10 per cent and working capital improved slightly. About half of the companies showed increase in cash and securities. Outstanding common stocks of companies increased less than 1 per cent, preferred also decreased more than 3 per cent and bonds increased less than 2 per cent.

Copper Surplus Continues Large

Copper production continues to exceed consumption. September output is to be still yet month, and likely to show another increase in surplus stocks.

Steel Dividends Are Well Earned

The fact that Republic Iron & Steel and Sharon Steel Hoop passed their dividends does not indicate the larger steel units, such as U. S Steel and Bethlehem, are likely to take similar action. The larger units have been making more than their respective dividends, all reporting substantial surpluses after all charges to June 30.

It may be that dividends will not be fully earned in the third quarter but the big companies have huge surpluses, accumulated over a half dozen of years of prosperity, which they can draw upon for dividend purposes if they see fit. It would be strange if companies like U. S. Steel and Bethlehem cut their dividends on the first appearance of a deficit after a prolonged period of cash accumulation. Officials of Republic say the passing of the dividend was not due to trade conditions, but to expenses incident to merging other properties.

Drop in Case of Huge Proportions

The peak for J. I. Case this year was 363¾. Recently it sold at a new low of 162¾, a decline of 220¾.

Bear Selling and Loans Connected

Some say the failure of brokers loans to shrink was due to heavy borrowing by the short interest. When you sell stocks short, you have to put money for margin purposes the same as when you buy them. However, changes in the loan item with money as low as 1 per cent do not interest the Street. Ask any broker, and he will tell you his firm is flush with cash.

Some say the short interest is larger than at any time this year Although no active stocks are lending at premiums, about 50 per cent are lending flat.

Earning Reports Comparisons Made

Earnings reports, compared with a year ago and dividend announcements by leading companies shape up as follows:

	Since Additions	July 1 Saturday
Increased earnings	258	1
Decreased earnings	535	2
Unchg'd dividends	1242	8
Increased dividends	62	1
Decreased dividends	130	1

Woolworth Held Well on Decline

In the decline Woolworth held well. Buyers say the report for third quarter will be favorable, in contrast with the showing of many other corporations. A firm closely identified with the management has been advising purchase of stock.

Gen. Electric's Outlook Bright

The main argument of short sellers of General Electric is that it is selling too high, based on ratio of selling price to per share earnings

Was there ever a time when General Electric didn't sell too high on that basis? But try to find the insider who ever sold a dollar's worth of General Electric short over any extended period.

If you had purchased 100 original shares of General Electric, held it and exercised all rights, etc., you would be very rich today. It is a good guess that General Electric common over the next 25 years will continue its record growth of the past 25 years. The outlook for electrical development is even more promising than it was a quarter-century ago.

This is one of a series of advertisements pointing out in a concrete way the expenditures being made by the properties of the New England Gas and Electric Association to provide facilities for needed service on a scale which will attract new industries and help keep established industries in operation.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS BUILDERS

$242,000 for Extending Gas Service

$205,700 of this total for improvement was spent locally for labor and materials

THE extension of Gas service into new areas not only means increased convenience for residents, but increased real estate values. Houses will be more readily rented and sold, and at a higher figure; new homes will be constructed and new business enterprises will come in to serve the growing population.

Although the West Boston Gas Company became affiliated with the New England Gas and Electric Association only one year ago, $242,000 have been authorized for the extension of gas service during 1930. This sum, being spent under the supervision of the group management organizations of the Associated Gas and Electric System subject to the control of the Boards of Directors of the operating companies, will provide 17 miles of new gas mains. Extensions are being made in the Massachusetts towns of Natick, North Needham, West Natick, Framingham, and Ashland, and gas has been introduced for the first time in Saxonville and Wellesley Park.

The New England Gas and Electric Association operating companies will expend a total of about $1,500,000 during 1930 in extending gas service. As a result, the areas served are becoming constantly more attractive locations for both homes and industries.

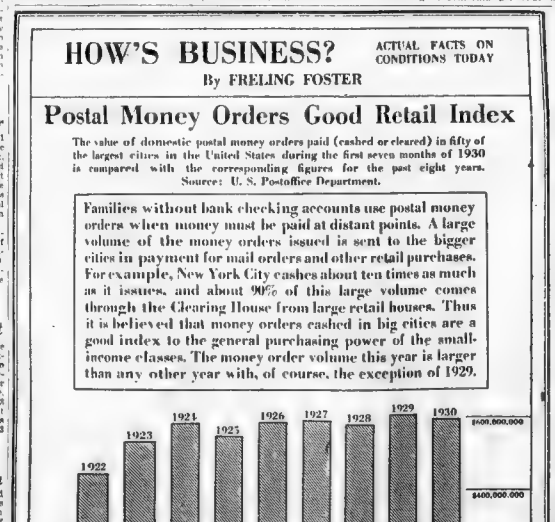
Postal Money Orders Good Retail Index

The value of domestic postal money orders paid (cashed or cleared) in fifty of the largest cities in the United States during the first seven months of 1930 is compared with the corresponding figures for the past eight years. Source: U. S. Postoffice Department.

Families without bank checking accounts use postal money orders when money must be paid at distant points. A large volume of the money orders issued is sent to the bigger cities in payment for mail orders and other retail purchases. For example, New York City cashes about ten times as much as it issues, and about 90% of this large volume comes through the Clearing House from large retail houses. Thus it is believed that money orders cashed in big cities are a good index to the general purchasing power of the small-income classes. The money order volume this year is larger than any other year with, of course, the exception of 1929.



Value, Postal Money Orders Paid, 50 Cities, Seven Months
1922	$445,116,000	1927	$591,276,000
1923	530,830,000	1928	581,542,000
1924	561,806,000	1929	608,795,000

Call Money Renewal Is at Lowest Mark in 15 Years

New York, Sept. 29 (INS)—Call money on the New York Stock Exchange renewed today at 1½ per cent, for the first time since July 7, 1915. Since the middle of last week money for stock market speculation has been offered as low as 1 per cent in the outside market. This reflects the huge amount of bank funds for which "employment" is being sought at this time, in New York as well as in important outside financial centers.

Oil Output Off

Daily average production of crude oil in California for the week ended September 27 totaled 500,000 barrels, a decrease of 20,900 barrels, according to California Oil World.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

A halt in the depressing decline of wheat, cotton and other commodities would do more to cheer the stock market and to bring about a business revival than any other single factor. Until evidence of this is forthcoming, the suleine position is safest for traders and investors of limited resources.

Auto Production

On the basis of automobile production for the first eight months of this year and the outlook for the remainder of the year, there is every indication that for the first time since 1927 production in 1930 will fall below the 4,000,000 mark It now appears that 3,760,000 is a fair estimate for the year, a total that would exceed the 1924 total by only a few thousand cars. Registrations for July, however, show that domestic sales alone exceeded production of passenger cars in the United States by over 14 per cent. Domestic sales of 256,058 passenger cars compared with July output of 222,459 cars.

Traction Stocks

The outstanding strength in the traction stocks, particularly in Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, has been based on the belief that the latter would from the nucleus of a city controlled traffic system It is reported that Interborough Rapid Transit will be taken in at a price of about $45 per share, and B. M. T. at a price of around $85.

Establishment of a central foreign exchange committee in Madrid through which banks must buy or sell foreign money was said today not to have aided the situation. Bankers have said the plan only slowed up the market, although speculation in Spain has been curbed. Others have held that speculation abroad has been increased especially in London, where the central foreign exchange committee buys foreign currencies

Railroad Bonds in Greatest Demand

New York, Sept. 29—Vigorous demand for railroad bonds kept that group in the forefront of the advance of the listed market today. While other seasoned domestic issues held firm in an active session, a slightly easier trend was displayed by the foreign list.

Missouri Pacific Buys a Railroad

Missouri Pacific Railroad has bought from C. S. Wright of Philadelphia, Rio Grande & Eagle Pass Railroad for $337,000. Line runs from Laredo, Tex., up Rio Grande to Dolores, distance of 23 miles.

Calls on Bankers to Chart 'the Course of Business'

Cleveland, O., Sept. 29—Pres. Lonsdale, of American Bankers' Association, said on the eve of the association's annual convention that it was the duty of the organization to interpret the present economic trend and show the way in which business and banking is to be stabilized

"The nation is eager to learn of the deliberations of the association," Lonsdale said. "Never was the time more opportune than now for banking leaders to chart the course which business and banking may pursue."

U. S. Trade With Nicaragua Large

Washington, Sept. 29—The latest import statistics of Nicaragua, which are for the calendar year of 1929, indicate that the United States supplied this market with approximately 50 per cent of all the iron and steel products which it purchased during that period, according to a report from Vice Consul Girvan Twil, Managua, Nicaragua, made public by the Department of Commerce

BUILDING LOAN FIGURES UP

Building and permanent loans on New York City properties made by Lawyers' Mortgage Company during the first three-quarters of 1930 will effect an increase of approximately 41 per cent over the total accepted in the same period last year according to a statement authorized by Richard M. Hurd, president of the company.

"With the applications for mortgage loans approved by our loan department during the month of September and subject to the acceptance of our executive committee at its next meeting, the total of loans made during the current year will exceed $70,000,000," Mr. Hurd said. "This amount is the largest ever accepted by the company in a similar period.

"There continues to be a steady demand for investments of the character that are fully guaranteed with respect to principal and income. The fact that money rates are now at the lowest level in Federal Reserve history undoubtedly has influenced investors, for our sales are at the highest peak in the company's history."

NEW YORK STOCKS

Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

BEARS DRIVE PRICES DOWN IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Sept. 29—After an advance that lifted representative industrial and utility shares 1 to 3 points the stock market lowered under a renewal of liquidation in the late afternoon trading today.

Bearish professionals made liberal offerings of the rails, oils, coppers and specialties, selling freely after a 3-point drop in Texas Corp. on reports that the dividend might be reduced. This rumor was denied in authoritative quarters.

STEEL SETS LOW

U. S. Steel broke below 157 to a new low for the decline. International Telephone, New York Central and Warner Bros. Pictures dropped 3 points to new lows. Baltimore & Ohio and St. Louis Southwestern lost 4, Canadian Pacific 5, Gillette and Vanadium 6 and Case 9.

The close was weak. Sales approximated 2,700,000 shares.

Execution of a fair volume of selling orders gave a heavy tone to the opening, but many were awaiting the leaders and the market soon turned upward as moderate covering appeared.

Renewal of pressure against specialties, coppers and a few specialties, among them Gillette and the Warner Brothers, then checked the advance and the general market eased off to conform to Saturday's closing prices.

Hesitancy of the shorts in covering their commitments in the forenoon advance was also apparently on a hope that the momentum of the last fortnight's decline would bring more still further liquidation.

Weekly reviews appearing over Sunday stressed uncertainties of the business situation and some again called attention to a belief that the fall improvement in trade would probably be less than seasonal.

STEELS DISAPPOINT

A report that steel operations in the Youngstown district were off 3 per cent this week was disappointing in view of earlier advices indicating a smaller change.

With the season rapidly advancing, it is feared in several quarters that the industrial gains will be little more than normal and that no pronounced and extended upturn will develop. Heaviness of the railroads in ordering their requirements found reflection in the statement of Atchison's president that his system might first fill its minimum needs and then increase its taking as developments were favorable.

One of the day's phenomena was the 1½ per cent renewal rate on call money, the lowest in 15 years. During the past week funds were freely offered unofficially at 1 per cent, but not until this morning did the stock exchange loan desk parallel the figure from the familiar 2 per cent. The result was considerable loan calling.

High grade domestic bonds, especially rail liens, moved forward with vigor.

Banks have been virtually forced into the bond market by the yields on short-term credit, for with prime commercial paper at 2 per cent and the best acceptances averaging a yield of 2, there has been no alternative to extensive purchases of medium and long term fixed income obligations.

Arrangements have been made for sale of New York Stock Exchange seat at $265,000, off $10,000 from the previous sale.

GRAINS ARE LOWER

Much of the public's interest in the security markets is in the same direction. Non-callable senior equity issues are becoming decidedly popular; U. S. Steel preferred made another all-time high today.

Early stock market weakness and uncertainty over Russian selling of wheat let grain down to the lowest prices of the season today.

Aggressive support came into the pile soon after the opening, but the atmosphere was nervous and fluctuations were swift. Wheat was ¾ to 2¼ cents lower at the start, and corn was ¾ to 2⅜ cents down.

The opening quotations in wheat were the lowest since 1909. September delivery starting at 73⅞ cents a bushel and December 78¼ to 77 cents. Cotton futures were lower.

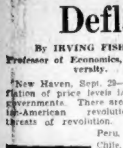
Fisher Gives Views on Deflation of Prices

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

New Haven, Sept. 29—World deflation of price levels is upsetting governments. There are the Spanish-American revolutions and threats of revolution. Argentina, Peru, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador, Bolivia, Cuba, have nations, together with Mexico, are prone to revolution as the sparks fly upward.



Irving Fisher

It needed only trade depression to set them off. But in Europe, likewise, storms of change are forming and overmuch. The election in Germany shows sharp cleavage between extremes of Fascism and Bolshevism, with the Moderates losing strength.

The nations meet at Geneva to consider the proposed League of Europe, and are mystified by the empty chair of Signor Grandi, the Italian foreign minister. Austria claims her right to be united to Germany. Hungary would again enthrone the Hapsburgs. England, alarmed by the uprisings in India and the continued menace in the world trade, calls her colonies in council. France watches cautiously the Balkans boils anew, with quarrels that stir up old jealousies between France and Italy. China, long in the turmoil of civil war demonetizes silver.

Meanwhile, lurking beneath the surface of world discontent, are the portentous figures of unemployment. Austria number 132,340 unemployed for July, 1930, compared with 107,190 in July, 1929; Germany shows 2,715,000 out of work in July, 1930, against 1,253,000 in July, 1929. Great Britain nearly 2,000,000 in June this year as against 1,116,000 a year before. Italy, 367,176 as against 227,882, and so on, including the Netherlands, Poland, Roumania, Finland, Estonia, Norway, Denmark, Hungary, Sweden and Irish Free State.

France, who has ridden joyously on the wave of prosperity while her European neighbors were in the trough of depression, is beginning to slide down into the trough herself. In this country, certain figures for unemployment, as recorded last April, were 2,409,151. But these figures have been changed as too small.

When world-wide business is unhinged by the fall of price levels, human society feels victimized. The more radical of each nation begins to hate society. Governments are overthrown, or suffer serious damage.

The United States is no exception to this rule. The administration at Washington, swept in country on the issue of prosperity, may be swept out again on the issue of hard times.

The Fall elections may show the turn, unless some concert of minds reaching far across national borders can be found to dispel the terrors of deflation.

Captain, Bride and Crew of Four, Lost

Chicago, Sept. 29—Wild Lake Michigan has claimed the three-man construction day by airplane and by vessels in a widespread search for the still missing fruit packer, The North the lake.

Shore, with its crew of four women, its captain and his 18-year-old bride.

MARINE OFFICER ENDS LIFE

Washington, Sept. 29 (UP)—As a gruesome finale to a brilliant career, Lieut.-Col. Richard Bennet Creecy, U. S. Marine corps, yesterday killed himself with a revolver bullet, after first wielding a hatchet upon his wife.

It happened in a room of one of the capital's most fashionable hotels. Colonel Creecy, just returned from duty in Haiti, was found sprawled on the floor dead, his wife, still breathing, was nearby, terribly wounded.

There, by the bodies, were the weapons, a glistening new hatchet, a new revolver, with one exploded chamber.

But one motive was ascribed for the tragic affair—sudden insanity, perhaps the result of fright fevers.

Mrs. Creecy was still alive last night, but her recovery was doubtful despite transfusions given her at a hospital.

For 27 years Colonel Creecy has been a picturesque figure in the Marines.

Gas Overcomes 8 as Thieves Rob Meter

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP)—Eight persons, including two babies, narrowly escaped asphyxiation today after thieves, to obtain a few coins, shattered two gas meters in a rooming house. Artificial respiration revived those overcome.

NOTICE OF HEARING

The Special Commission appointed under Chapter 29 of the Resolves of the year 1929 to investigate and report relative to the diminishing of sewage flow in Boston and its tributary waters with a view to the retaining of such sewage for sanitary and profitable conditions, has caused examinations to be made to ascertain the feasibility and practicability of constructing estuaries to be made to ascertain the Town River barrier of the discharge of sewage therein, especially at the three principal outlets at Dorchester, Roxbury and Nut Island.

Said Board will hear any objections as may be urged to the present methods of sewage flow in the harbor and tributary waters, the Commission will hold a public hearing at the Boston Statehouse, in Boston, Massachusetts, on October 10, 1930, at 10 A. M.

Law and the Judges

A Suggestion to Governor Allen

Mr. William G. Thompson is exactly right when he says that what the country needs is not more laws but more just and humane judges to administer the laws we have.

"If there were an Oliver Wendell Holmes on every bench," he says, "it would be the employers, not the employes, seeking the repeal of the injunction laws affecting labor."

Laws are not always what they are written. They are what they are enforced. In this State we see the judges playing fast and loose with the laws intended to put the drunken and reckless automobile drivers into jail where they belong, not to keep them on the highways where they slaughter life and destroy property.

A fellow who knows a fellow who knows a second cousin of the judge has a better chance to escape the penalty than the fellow who knows no relative at all.

In New York we see them buying judgeships like potatoes at the cash-and-carry store. In some parts of the West where dry intolerance is king we have seen them put old women into jail for life because they were caught doing what everybody else was doing, buying or selling a pint of gin.

Governor Allen has several court vacancies to fill in this State. He will do well to select judges to whom all persons will look alike when they get into court.

Curley and Professors

They'll Discuss Employment

Mayor Curley calls a conference of the college presidents and other intellectual leaders to give a lift of the problem of unemployment. The politicians have failed in this crisis, he says.

With that we cannot entirely agree. Mayor Curley is himself no novice in the political arena and the effort he has made to revive employment and good wages in co-operation with the campaign of the Boston Evening American possessed the elements of good and vigorous statesmanship.

The people themselves are willing to go ahead. Thousands pledged themselves through the Boston Evening American Buy Now Club to spend a few more dollars a week each for the things they need now or will need in the near future. They have been wise buyers because they have found the stores teeming with fine bargains.

Mayor Curley's conference of the educational leaders will prove to be serviceable. These men have vision and confidence. A few meetings like these will crystallize the optimism that is now a bit scattered and everybody can join hands as they march on together to better times. Good jobs at good wages is the goal.

Brains and Legs

Both Are Important

"Bobby Jones seems to have a fine spirit for the fray," we said to the Golf Editor.

"Yes," replied Mr. Bill Grimes, "but he also has A FINE PAIR OF LEGS."

You see the point at once. A grand pair of legs, under a fine spirit, carried the first Greek marathoner from Thermopylae to Athens and saved his country from military ruin. The four fine legs of a horse carried the indomitable spirit of Fighting Phil Sheridan to Winchester and saved the Union Army from rout.

Mental ability functions best in a stout body. Both are important, except in isolated cases, as witness the crippled Steinmetz. Eat prudently. Take ample exercise. The span of life has increased ten years in two generations. Maybe in that extra ten years, by keeping your legs and abdominal muscles firm, you would achieve your greatest success.

A Cup for Sir Thomas

Boston Proud to Join in

Sir Thomas Lipton may not need any more loving cups. But like all good men he can well stand the affection they represent. Boston has a sentimental attachment for this venerable gentleman whose elevation to the peerage took away none of his simplicity or his love for his fellowman. He has always found the people of Boston "the salt of the earth," as he describes it. They have always found him a generous and thoughtful friend. So, let's give him a cup, a great big one with goodcheer overflowing. Mayor Curley is receiving the donations for it.

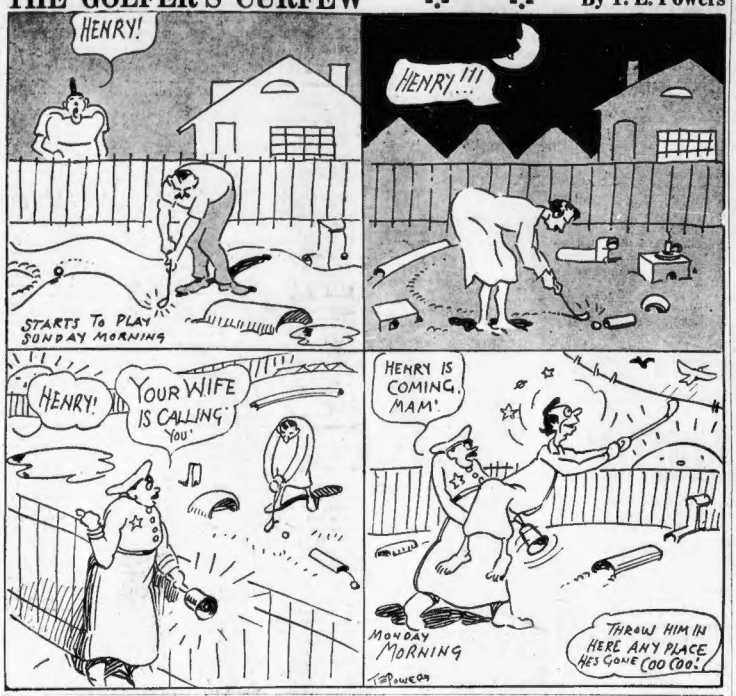
His Spirit Marches On

LaFollette Followers Active

"Fighting Bob" LaFollette may be dead, but his soul, like his two able sons, still goes marching on. One of the interesting facts of our local political conditions is that the 125,000 Bay State people who voted for him when he last ran for President have kept themselves together in an organization to fight for the principles he so well advocated. It is a fine tribute to the spirit of a man who knew how to fight valiantly for what he believed to be right.

THE GOLFER'S CURFEW

By T. E. Powers



New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

The Play's the Thing; Fewer Stars

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Diary of a modern Pepys: A drizzly morning and "ghost writing" a magazine piece for my dog which was grand fun. Then to breakfast, the waiter wearing glasses and bearing a striking resemblance to Hugh Walpole. Afterward to walk with Mike Hogg.

In the afternoon clearing old papers out of a trunk came upon a check for book royalties. And so overjoyed I pushed aside work and with my wife went shopping, shaped glass buying an S-shaped glass telephone case the slickest play-pretty I ever beheld.

To dinner with the Ray Longs in Greenwich, and John Cuneo, the printing man, and his fair bride there as were Betty and Fred Drake and May Allison and Jim Quirk. Talking until the noon swam high and silvered the peaceful Westchester countryside.

Sudden windfalls often create odd reactions. I am reliably told of a sedate business man who rarely gambled. Last August he was induced to wager $1,000 on a hundred to one shot at Saratoga. At a dinner party that evening he learned he won. He went home with a raging headache and kept to his bed four days.

A similar tale concerns an ambitious young married man holding an obscure post in a large department store. He was diligent and had an eye on getting ahead. Unexpectedly one afternoon, he was called in by the general manager and made a department head. He burst forth in a bloated cackle of hysteria and had to be sent home. The emotional flare-up cost him his promotion.

An off-stage guess is that a man needing promotion so badly that receiving it skyrockets him into a spell of the jitties would be worth giving The Big Chance.

Some years ago I was notified over the phone of an undeserved rise in income. I was flabbergasted but suddenly dashed into the bathroom, slammed the door and tapped out as neat a jig as you ever saw. Ten minutes later I was not only calm but began to wonder why it wasn't more.

We were discussing attractive names of women novelists. My choices are Charlotte Bronte, Clemence Dane, Jane Austen and to my notion the most beautiful of all—Kathleen Norris.

Many authors have surmounted great obstacles without a whimper. J. Breckenridge Ellis has written more than 30 novels in a wheel chair. Somerset Maugham has a vocal impediment. Basil King had only slight vision for years. William McFee is almost stone deaf. As is Rupert Hughes. George Ade has for years suffered from neurasthenia. Booth Tarkington has one-thirteenth vision in one eye. The other is sightless.

Irvin Cobb was to have been named Josh after an uncle, but before the christening a relative "putting on airs" as Cobb says, persuaded his father to bestow the more eloquent Irvin Shrewsbury. Josh Cobb is an air-tight name for a humorist and Cobb has always regretted it was duded-up.

Few writers acquire nick-names. Only four of the top-notchers I can recall are generally addressed by intimates in the shorter manner. Sinclair Lewis is "Red". Charles G. Norris "Seegee". Booth Tarkington is "Tark" and Clarence Budington Kelland is "Bud."

The two heavyweight writers of the day are Albert Payson Terhune and Ben Ames Williams. Each weighs more than 220 pounds and both are more than six feet.

The shyest and most self effacing author among strangers is Arthur Somers Roche and the most hilarious among intimates. The best dressed is Michael Arlen.

I don't know the why of all these details about the lives and traits of writers except that two of the nicest letters I ever received came today from members of the guild and I'm in something of a glow and rather gabby.

Words of the Wise Men

Can you pretend to love, and have no pity? Love and that are twins. —Dryden.

Simplicity of character is no hindrance to subtlety of intellect. —Morley.

Choose an author as you choose a friend. —Dillon.

Levelling is comfortable, as we often say, levelling yet only down to oneself. —Carlyle.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Medelian Complications Arise

HERE IS a strange result. We crossed a red cock with a white hen, both pure bred; in the first hybrid generation all the cocks are white and all the hens are red!

H. G. Wells

It is usually impossible to tell the sexes of fowls until they are several weeks old. But it would be eminently desirable to do so earlier for then the breeder could sell batches of chicks guaranteed all male to those who want to fatten birds for the table.

Taking advantage of the facts just described this can be done and done at hatching. If a Rhode Island cock be used with pure-bred Light Sussex hens we can be certain that all the golden chicks are female while the white ones are all male.

There are other color combinations which give a similar result.

There exist, of course, a large number of widespread popular beliefs and breeders' superstitions as to the possibility of testing the sex of the chicks or of the embryo before hatching. Some breeders declare that the sex can be prophesied from the shape of the egg, pointed eggs yielding males and rounded females; others pin their faith to the size of the egg, others to the position of the embryo as seen when the egg is "candled."

Still others believe that a needle or a ring held suspended by a thread over the egg or chick will tell its sex by the movements it makes, movement to and fro in a straight line denoting a male, in a broad ellipse or a circle, a female. There is not an atom of support for any of these beliefs.

Eggs selected by breeders as male or female have been hatched out and tested in scientific laboratories; there has never been any noteworthy deviation from the normal sex-ratio.

A French research worker noted the sex recorded by the suspended ring for several hundred eggs and then examined the chicks on hatching. The prophecies were right in fifty per cent of the chicks—that is to say, in the proportion expected for blind-guessing.

"Sex testers" of various types are still advertised in various poultry papers; since the true facts have been known for years, the sale of such implements is a mere vulgar fraud, and the advertisement should not be accepted.

There are many human characteristics which are inherited in this sex-linked way. Two striking abnormalities may be mentioned. One is night-blindness, the inability to see in the twilight; the other is haemophilia, a very unpleasant condition, when the blood is incapable of clotting and the smallest cut may cause dangerous bleeding.

As their genes are carried on the X-chromosome, these defects zigzag to and fro between the sexes in a peculiar way. Almost without exception they are seen only in males.

A $5,000,000 Dive

An Italian Made It

VERY RISKY, BUT WORTH WHILE

The strange thing pushed over the side of the ship, in the picture above, contains a courageous Italian deep sea diver named Alberto Gianni. You observe the terrific weight and strength of the diving machine in which he is lowered deep into the ocean, far deeper than any diver for treasure ever went before.

At the top of the diving "suit" in the center you see a cable which supplies information by telephone, the diver takes down his own supply of oxygen. But at best the time he can remain below is definitely limited. He must be above the water at the right moment or die.

In 1922 the steamship Egypt sank with $5,000,000 in gold in her bullion vaults.

Soundings showed that the ship rested on the bottom of the ocean at a great depth, TOO FAR DOWN TO HOPE FOR RECOVERY.

It was decided by all, except ONE, that it was not worth trying.

The exception was the energetic Mussolini, who believes in getting things done, especially if they are called "impossible." He decided that five million dollars in gold would do more good spent in Italy than resting on the bottom of the ocean. And what he says is law in Italy. Men willing to undertake the task were easily found.

Gianni's face indicates that fear is not his specialty. A man with a jaw like that enjoys difficulties.

Time and again he was lowered, and finally he telephoned back, "Pull me up."

Going down repeatedly, he found the captain's box and in it the keys to the treasure chamber.

The $5,000,000 in gold will no longer lie buried, with so many other tens and hundreds of millions, at the bottom of the ocean and the money will be spent usefully in Italy, perhaps on reconstruction of houses damaged by the earthquake.

It is a useful thing for a nation or an individual to possess the quality that causes Mussolini to say, "The impossible things are the most interesting, because they usually can be done." He is like another Italian, Napoleon, who, using the French nation as his weapon, conquered Europe. When they praised him for crossing the Alps in the dead of Winter, Napoleon said: "That is the easiest time to cross, there are no snow slides, no danger. I deserve no credit except for not believing fools that called it IMPOSSIBLE."
